PUBLIC SCHOOL NEEDS EXCEED BONDING ABILITY ADVISORY COMMITTEE

Recommends Total of $525,000 to Relieve Congestion, Heating, Lighting, Sanitary Units and Furnishings, Which Is $100,000 in Excess of Capacity

ESTIMATES ORDERED TRIMMED

Junior High School Plan Is Approved by the Board of Education As Soon As Practicable for Its Accomplishment

Members of the advisory committee appointed to investigate conditions in the Glendale city schools and recommend to the board of education the sum needed for the building program of the coming year, met with the board Thursday evening and considered estimates of cost of the buildings needed to relieve school congestion, heating plants, sanitary units, furnishings and in some instances additional grounds, and reached a total approximating $525,000. As that sum exceeds the bonding capacity of the district, which is about $450,000, a committee to trim the estimates was appointed by W. E. Hewitt, who had been elected chairman, the committee consisting of Capt. William C. Wattles, chairman, and Mrs. Myrtle Buckman, H. V. Henry, H. L. Adams, and Mrs. Adelle Wichert, with Superintendent R. D. White and Business Manager David Black associated with them in an advisory capacity. This committee is to meet at headquarters of the board next Tuesday evening to go over the estimates, and report to the full committee and board at a meeting to be held next Thursday evening in the same place.

The committee of the whole also went on record by vote as favoring the junior high school plan whenever it may be possible to carry it into effect.

A communication was read from residents in the neighborhood of the Magnolia School asking for the establishment of an elementary school there to accommodate at least four grades, which would call for an additional three-room unit. Cerritos Avenue patrons having also asked for the building of permanent units to replace the old buildings it was felt the situation called for special investigation inasmuch as there would not be funds available for the full satisfaction of both. A committee was therefore appointed to confer with school patrons of that section composed of Col. James Everington, chairman; Peter Ferry, Mrs. O. W. Esselman and Ernest Morgan, to determine if possible what course should be taken and report back to the committee and the board next Thursday.

The only units of the 12 schools in the city for which no additional permanent buildings were considered were Colorado and Wilson Avenue, and it was admitted that more accommodations would have to be provided there by means of temporary bungalows within the year. More permanent buildings on the Wilson Avenue campus will demand the purchase of more high priced ground for the enlargement of the campus. It appeared to be the sense of the committee that a more practical proposition would be to build another intermediate similar in character to the Glendale Avenue school in the northwest. The needs of the schools in the order in which they were considered were estimated as follows:

Grand View, which has 4 rooms and six grades, or three grades to a room and no kindergarten, and a present enrollment of 139, it was figured needed two additional rooms and a kindergarten.

Central Avenue, which has eight rooms and an enrollment of 347—four additional class rooms with heating plant and equipment.

Columbus Avenue, with an enrollment of 577—additional land and four additional class rooms with sanitary units, heating plant, etc.

Pacific Avenue, with 448 pupils and ten rooms—some additional land and six more class rooms with heating plant. Mr. Wattles suggested that the court be covered with a glass roof to serve as an auditorium.

Doran Street, with 300 pupils, 7 rooms, 6 grades and kindergarten, it was estimated needed four additional class rooms as the first unit of permanent buildings.

Broadway, with 401 pupils, eight rooms and a kindergarten, it was felt needed four more rooms or two at the end of each wing.

Acacia, which has 301 pupils, in six class rooms and a kindergarten, it was agreed needs four additional class rooms as it is in a very rapidly developing district.

The needs of Magnolia which has 53 pupils in two rooms, and of Cerritos, which has an old building of 8 rooms in which are 259 pupils and is not as congested as other schools, have already been touched upon and will be investigated by the committee referred to.

Glendale Avenue, which has 293 pupils, and is so crowded that a temporary bungalow will be required there in February, has never been completed, still lacking the auditorium needed by the school and community surrounding it. It also needs, according to the committee's estimates, six additional class rooms.

Verdugo Canyon and the Sparr Heights Tract to the north of it and the school needs thereof were discussed and a proposition for a school site submitted to the board by the Sparr Heights Company was read. It proposed to give one acre outright and sell four additional acres at a price of $6,250 per acre, the suggested site being located not very far from the Montrose boundary line in the vineyard about 2000 feet beyond the point where Canada Boulevard cuts through. The fact that the present school attendance is from points south of that point was mentioned and a committee was appointed to confer with the Newport Company relative to a five-acre site for a building of three or four rooms. The committee was composed of John Bolen, F. E. Wilkinson and Mr. Newby.

The full membership of the Board of Education was present, viz., President David Hibben, E. H. Learned, L. P. O. Lucas, Mrs. Artur C. Brown and Mrs. A. A. Barton, Superintendent R. D. White, Business Manager David Black, and the following members of the advisory committee: W. E. Hewitt, chairman: O. G. Thompson, O. M. Newby, H. V. Henry, W. C. Wattles, Peter Ferry, John Bolen, Col. James Everington, F. E. Wilkinson, Mrs. Myrtle Buckman, H. L. Adams, Mrs. Adell Wichert.

NEWCOMERS ASKED TO FILE CREDIT REPORT

Secretary Piling of the Glendale Credit Men's Association says the average citizen would hardly believe the figures of the new residents of Glendale who are arriving every day from all parts of the United States, and the number of new business enterprises which are being started here.

He also says if these newcomers would at once visit his association and file a statement of their financial situation and their financial references, it would save them and the merchants with whom they are likely to have dealings all embarrassment. Coming as they do from distant places, some guarantee of their responsibility is necessary where credit is extended, and the time that might be spent in investigation could be saved by the filing of the references mentioned.

AERIAL CONVENTION PLANNED FOR THE AIRPORT PROJECT

Secretary James M. Rhoades announces that immediately after the holidays he will call an all-day convention to be held in Glendale of all the aerial interests of Southern California, manufacturers, aerial transportation companies, and private owners.

Here's a Duck of a Swap for Chickens

Would you like to have a nice, big fat duck for Christmas dinner? The owner of six fine ducks, located at 1112 Linden avenue, Fairview tract, wants to trade them for six chickens.

This same swapper wants to swap two and a half acres at Blythe with a small house for Glendale property, also a house and two lots in Blythe for Glendale land.

COUNCIL ENDORSED BY C. OF C.

Secretary Rhoades Sends Instructed Communication to the Board

VOTE OF CONFIDENCE

Congratulates Officials on Action of Securing Airport

That the Glendale chamber of commerce directors approve of the purchase by the city of 33 acres of land for airport purposes in West Glendale by the city council, is shown in a letter received last night by the council.

The communication referred to the action of the chamber of commerce directors at a meeting on December 5, congratulating the council on its action which did not take place until December 9, in purchasing the land according to announcement.

The communication follows:

"I am instructed by the board of directors of the Glendale chamber of commerce to extend to your honorable body the sincere congratulations of the board on your actions in making it possible for Glendale to be a port for airplane transportation for the great city of Los Angeles and Los Angeles county.

"I am further instructed to advise you that at their meeting of December 5th, the board passed a unanimous vote of thanks and confidence to your honorable body in purchasing the land for water conservation and for the airplane field.

"The board thinks that this is an act of great vision, for reason that if, 20 years ago, a city council had voted to spend the city's money to build a garage to care for the autos that council would have been adjudged insane. And yet, in a few short years, motor transportation is caring for a large proportion of the transportation of the nation. Our board is of the opinion that, in a few years, more people will enter this port by air plane, coming to and from Los Angeles, than they will be via the water harbor at Wilmington.

"Our board further believes in a great future growth of this city and that this growth will necessitate further development in water production and by purchase of this land a plentiful water supply has been assured for all time to come.

"The board of directors again congratulates you and wishes me to say to you that you have taken the proper course."

This communication was signed by James Rhoades, secretary.

PAUL EDMONDS TO HEAD HI-Y FOR THE YEAR

Election of Officers Held of All Groups in the City

At a recent meeting of the Hi-Y groups of Glendale the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Paul Edmonds, president; Theodore Haig, vice president; Harold Hancock, secretary-treasurer. The Glendale Hi-Y will send two boys to Asilomar to attend the students' conference of college boys from Arizona, California and Nevada, and to which two boys from each of the Hi-Y associations are invited. Paul Edmonds and Fred Peck will represent Glendale and will be accompanied to the conference by Howard Butterfield. They will leave on December 26 and will be gone for a week. All high school boys who will be in attendance are seniors.

CITY COUNCIL DENIES GRANTING GLENDALE MOTOR BUS PERMIT

C. D. Gulick Points to Resolution of Saturday's Special Meeting and Refuses to Discuss Matter

COUNCIL DECIDES BY RESOLUTION

Substance of Matter Printed in Glendale Daily Press Causes Tangle in Council Chamber

At its meeting last night the Glendale city council passed a resolution denying that it had ever granted a permit to the Glendale Motor Bus company, of which C. D. Gulick is manager, to operate a motor bus line over "any of the streets of the city of Glendale."

The resolution, which was offered by Councilman Davis, and was passed, is as follows:

"Be it resolved, That the council has granted no motor bus permits to anyone recently in the city of Glendale, and be it further

"Resolved, that we do not intend to grant any permits paralleling the proposed Glendale avenue line or other lines of the Glendale-Montrose Railway company."

The fact or the matter is that as shown by city records the council did grant permits to the Glendale Motor Bus company to operate over "any streets in the city of Glendale."

Following is a portion of the resolution adopted by the city council Saturday night, as printed in the Glendale Daily Press Tuesday:

"Resolved, that we, the mayor and city council of the city of Glendale will allow and do hereby grant permits to the Glendale Motor Bus company, to operate over any of the streets of the city of Glendale, necessary to give service in connection with the through line the Glendale Motor Bus company now contemplates establishing between the city of Los Angeles and the city of Glendale."

Mr. Gulick stated this morning: "The resolution as printed in the Glendale Daily Press of Tuesday, was passed by the council at the special meeting on Saturday. It speaks for itself, and is part of the city record. Further than that I have nothing to say on the action of the council last night."

PETITION FOR WIDENING OF SAN FERNANDO

L. H. Wilson and Others Ask Greater Width Between Certain Points

An effort is being made by L. H. Wilson and other property owners on San Fernando road to have that thoroughfare widened along certain stretches. The following petition was filed by these land owners with the city council last night:

"We hereby petition your honorable body to institute condemnation proceedings for the purpose of condemning a strip 10 feet in width along either side of the present San Fernando road between Los Feliz and Pacific avenue, and between Los Feliz and Garfield on the west side of the street, for the purpose of widening said street 20 feet from its present width of approximately 66 feet, to 86 feet more or less."

HOW TO MARK YOUR BALLOT TO VOTE AGAINST ANNEXATION ON CHAMBER OF COMMERCE BALLOT

At the request of members of the Chamber of Commerce, who have been puzzled by the form of the referendum ballot put out by the Chamber of Commerce on the question of annexation, the Glendale Daily Press submits to the members of the organization one uniform way of recording their sentiment against annexation.

The form as printed requires one "NO" to be written on the first of the two questions, which is:

IN FAVOR OF Annexation?

One "NO" written to this question ends the matter.

It is unnecessary to answer the second question, since the decision against annexation presumes the voter to be against annexation.

Just the reason for the printing of the same question in two forms has not been elucidated. The way to avoid nullifying the vote is to answer one form of the question only.

REMEMBER: TWO NEGATIVES MAKE AN AFFIRMATIVE. DON'T BE OVER-ZEALOUS AND VOTE "NO" IN BOTH PLACES OR YOU WILL KILL YOUR VOTE.

The ballot, properly marked, follows:

Referendum Ballot

To the Members of Glendale Chamber of Commerce:

It has been requested, by several organizations, that the Chamber of Commerce take a stand on the question of the City of Glendale annexing to Los Angeles. At a regular meeting of the board of directors, held Monday night, December 11, the following resolution was adopted:

"Resolved, That the board of directors of the Glendale Chamber of Commerce go on record as being opposed to the annexation of Glendale to Los Angeles, individually, and that a referendum ballot be sent out immediately to the entire membership of the Chamber of Commerce, requesting each member to vote his convictions on the matter." The resolution was adopted.

The board of directors is desirous of conducting a democratic Chamber of Commerce and abiding by the wishes of the majority of the members. We will thank you to vote your wishes on annexation and return this ballot in the enclosed envelope, voting "Yes" as voting FOR annexation, and voting "No" as voting opposed to annexation.

Ballots must reach the polling place not later than Saturday, 12 o'clock noon, December 16, 1922. Polling place, Chamber of Commerce, 150 South Brand boulevard.

IN FAVOR OF ANNEXATION | NO |

C. of C. Votes on Annexation Ballot

Clerks at the Chamber of Commerce report that between 300 and 400 votes on the proposition of annexation to Los Angeles under the referendum instituted by the chamber among its members, had been received up to 11 a. m. today. The ballot box will close at noon Saturday, and officials hope every member will be heard from.

DRUGGIST DEFEATS HOLD UP

Proprietor of Acacia Pharmacy Routs Bandits When Held Up

HAS GUN AT HIS SIDE

Victim Dives Into Store and Gets His Own Revolver

A futile attempt was made at 10 o'clock last night by two men to rob the Acacia avenue pharmacy, located at the corner of Glendale avenue and Acacia. Quick and daring action on the part of Mr. Harris, the proprietor of the establishment, who, after securing his revolver, fired five shots at the would-be robbers, resulted in them being driven away.

While Mr. Harris was standing beside his automobile, which was at the curb, one of the men, who had approached quietly, pressed the muzzle of a revolver against his side.

Looking around and seeing what was going on, Mr. Harris knocked the hand of the thug upward and ran into the store. After securing his revolver he returned to the entrance of the store and fired five shots after the men, who were hurrying down Glendale avenue.

WHAT'S WRONG WITH OUR CITY OFFICIALS?

So You Might Write If You Lived in Hollywood With M. L. Garrigus

M. L. Garrigus, citizen of Hollywood, appealed, as the court of last resort, to the Los Angeles Times, with the pathetic inquiry. An inquiry which might be voiced in Glendale—if this city also annexed to Los Angeles.

His appealing question follows: "What is the matter with our city officials? It seems like about all they are good for is to draw their salaries and levy assessments which the people do not want. My own personal experience with them leads me to think that we need a 'housecleaning,' somebody to scourge the money changers from our city temple. Speaking for our people out here in this section of Hollywood, will say that we find it impossible to obtain anything in the way of either new legislation or an enforcement of the laws already made. On Santa Monica boulevard in particular, we have a fire zoning ordinance, passed six months ago and which is a dead letter despite, that a dozen flagrant violations have occurred and every one guilty has been reported by myself to the proper authorities. Nothing doing, and the violator goes on with a defiant smile, and encourages others to do likewise.

"For over a year we have, as an association and as individuals, endeavored to have somebody's blunder in the matter of the Los Angeles Street Car company's tracks corrected here at the terminus of the Western avenue line. 'Nothing doing,' notwithstanding promises and other meaningless 'stalling' which the board of Public Utilities and other city officials have done to pacify the indignant people. It still is a bone of contention, in the meantime the company collecting money for fares and unloading the passengers from one to three blocks short of the destination, as announced on the car signs.

There is an ordinance on the books forbidding the placing of sandwich signs and other junk on the sidewalks. Our walks out here in Hollywood are almost blockaded with them in places. Everything from the ice cream signs and oil signs, mostly furnished by the big corporations, to the 'hot dog' wagons occupy space rightfully belonging to the people for traffic. This has been reported time and again, and yet the signs stay there. Police department don't even promise anything. Enforcing law—well not that anybody knows of.

"M. L. GARRIGUS."

Boys Committed to Juvenile Court

Leyo Robins, 14 years old, and Kenneth Matzek, 13 years, both residents of the automobile camp ground at the corner of Riverdale drive and San Fernando road, were committed to juvenile court in Los Angeles, this morning, on account of several thefts committed by them recently.

The most recent "job" of these youngsters was the theft from the store conducted by May Selover and son, at 710 South San Fernando road, of two boxes of cigars and 10 bars of chocolate, this theft taking place at 4 o'clock yesterday morning.

Not more than a week ago the boys were arrested for stealing money from milk bottles on the porches of some of the homes in the West Glendale district. At that time they were permitted to go on their promise to refrain from doing anything of the kind again.

DELAY IN COLLECTION OF BONUS PLEDGES RETARDS ROAD ELECTRIFICATION

Herman Nelson Announces Drive to Get Money in by First of Next Week and Complete Campaign

PACIFIC SOUTHWEST DEPOSITORY

Officials of Glendale-Montrose Puzzled by Absence of Funds Already Subscribed to the Extent of $25,000

That inactivity in connection with the matter of collecting the money subscribed toward the electrification of the Union Pacific's line on Glendale avenue is retarding the consummation of that undertaking, P. L. Hatch of the Glendale-Montrose railway declared today.

"While I would not care to say that our operations are being held up by this money having not been collected," said Mr. Hatch, "I will say that if that money was in the bank we would act a little differently than we are at the present time.

"You will see some real action on our part just as soon as those in charge of collecting this money come to us and say:

"'The $25,000 is in the bank. We have done our part, and now it is up to you.'

"The officials of the company naturally do not understand why this money is not collected, inasmuch as it has all ben subscribed. The company has been very patient in this matter. The members feel, however, that something should be done right away."

Herman Nelson, manager of the Glendale avenue branch of the Pacific Southwest Trust and Savings bank, who is in charge of the collection, said last night:

"We expect to send out the notices calling for the subscriptions about the first part of next week. Some of them may go out Saturday and the rest will be sent out just as quickly as we can find time to do the work. The matter of calling for these subscriptions will be taken care of as rapidly as possible."

At the close of the campaign for funds for the Glendale avenue line, P. J. Hayselden stated to the Glendale Advancement association that his work had been completed, and that under no consideration would he undertake to collect the funds.

Although several members of the organization offered to assist in this work there was no committee appointed to take over the collecting of the funds.

The matter trailed along for several weeks, until the last meeting of the Glendale Advancement association, when Herman Nelson, along with Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Mercer volunteered to take over the work, it being decided that the notices should go out from the bank of which Mr. Nelson is manager, the money being payable at that institution.

The contracts have all been signed by the railway company, according to Mr. Hatch, and within a few days everything up to the point of starting actual work will have been completed, so far as that company is concerned.

'LONGER WE STAY OUT OF L. A., BETTER OFF'

J. A. Newton of Electric Co. Voices Opposition to Annexation

J. A. Newton, of the Newton Electric Company, this morning voiced in no uncertain manner his sentiments concerning the proposition to annex Glendale to Los Angeles. He said:

"I am absolutely decided in my own mind that the longer we stay out of Los Angeles the better off we are. It seems to me one only needs to ride out Sherman Way and hear the complaints of the Van Nuys people of the time they have to get improvements to convince himself of the disadvantages of annexation, especially if we consider the fact that if we are dissatisfied with our own administration we can clean house ourselves, while we could not in Los Angeles.

"I was in the electrical department of the Los Angeles City Hall a few days ago and the man at the desk said: 'I hear you people are coming into Los Angeles.' I replied: 'I don't know about that,' and he said in response: 'I hope you don't. We have all the work we can do right here.'

The idea was that they could not give added service even with electrical inspection in Glendale."

XMAS SNOW HIKE PLANNED FOR SCOUTS

Executive Board of Verdugo Hills Plans 3-Day Trip

At its meeting last evening in the new boy scout office the executive board of the Verdugo Hills District Council decided to have a big three day Christmas snow hike to Old Baldy on December 26, 27, and 28. According to present plans of the camping committee, of which Peter L. Ferry is chairman, the party will have to be limited to fifty because of the facilities at their disposal at Camp Baldy where they will be fed and lodged. A big motor bus will convey the scouts to the toll house from which they will hike to Camp Baldy. A special rate has been granted the scouts of $3.00 for the three days to include the meals, lodging and transportation. There will be good old-fashioned snow ball fights and numerous other winter sports indulged in by the scouts. The first fifty scouts to sign up at scout headquarters and to pay their $3.00 will be the lucky ones to go. E. B. Thomas, one of the Burbank scoutmasters, rushed into the office this morning with eleven reservations for the trip.

In preparation for the annual meeting of the council which will be held Friday evening, December 29, the following committees were appointed by President Charles L. Chandler: Program, Owen C. Emery and C. C. Cooper; budget, Peter L. Ferry, Glendale; Emil F. Swanson, Eagle Rock; Leo L. Lang, Tujunga; and Dr. A. E. W. Yale, Burbank. Nominating and membership, Roy L. Kent, A. R. Eastman and Charles L. Chandler. It is the plan of the latter committee to have representatives from all the civic, fraternal, labor and church organizations on the new council.

As a special representative of the Twelfth Regional Committee, B. S. A., D. W. Pollard, formerly scout executive a. Chicago and Los Angeles, and for years in the Y. M. C. A., and numerous other boys' work organizations, told the board of the future possibilities of the scout movement in the Verdugo Hills District. "This is one of the best places I know of in the United States to put over the boy scout program of outdoor activities," he declared, "and I know that we can pave the way for opening up this greatest program ever devised for boyhood to every boy in the district."

Mrs. Georgia E. McCourt of St. Croix Falls, Wisconsin, arrived in Glendale recently and will spend the winter as the house guest of her son-inlaw and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. S. H. Wilcox of 1924 Gardena avenue.

A Daily Tour of Glendale Stores

WALKER'S CANDY STORE OF ENTICING ODORS

Mmmm! Where is that delicious odor coming from? That odor that makes your mouth fairly water?. Why, it's from Walker's Candy Store, at 134 North Brand, where the most wonderful home-made candies you ever tasted are made fresh daily.

Really, if you have never tried any of Mr. Walker's home-made delicacies, the holiday season offers splendid opportunity to do so. Mr. Walker is terribly busy now making up Christmas candies of the mixed variety—the kind that the kiddies love because it lasts so long. And one nice feature about it is that only pure materials are used in any of these candies.

This store makes most of their own candies, including chocolate creams, chocolate coated nuts of every kind, caramels, nut rolls—in fact, every good kind of candy will be found here. One especially attractive feature is the candy baskets, actually made of candy. They come in a large variety of bright colors and may be filled with other candies to make a pleasing gift. Then, too, there are fancy boxes or baskets which always make an acceptable gift. If you have a pretty fancy basket you want to give as a gift, bring it in and have Mr. Walker fill it with the many goodies he has at his store.

Mr. Walker also has the Pacific Coffee store in his building. He roasts all of the coffee as well as salted peants and peanuts in the shell. These are roasted fresh daily.

Tiny Flashes for Christmas Tree at Glendale Electric Co.

With that so essential feature of the Christmas tree decoration, the vari-colored lights, furnishing additional safety against fire danger through the medium of tiny electric lights, the family Christmas celebration can be enjoyed to a fuller extent by mother and father and the kiddies. The Glendale Electric company at 132 North Brand boulevard has a very attractive assortment of electric lights for the tree and also a number of electrical conveniences for the home and a variety of styles in light fixtures and globes.

The selection of Christmas gifts from among the many useful articles on exhibition at this electric shop is sure to delight the one receiving same. There one may choose either an electric dishwasher, washing machine. Eveready flashlight, coffee urn, toasters, floor lamps, waffle irons, or an electric stove with ovenette and grill. The electrical household appliances are very popular and are one of the biggest savers of time, energy and also from an economical standpoint. If you are remodeling your home what could be more appropriate for a Christmas gift than an order for new electrical fixtures and globes?

PENDROY'S STORE IS ENLARGING SPACE

Carpenters have been working night and day this week to complete the mezzanine floor which is being built in Pendroy's store to relieve congestion on the third floor. A change has been made in the staircase to provide steps to the new department where art goods and lamps will be on sale, leaving the space they have been occupying on the third floor free for increased stock in carpets, rugs, draperies, furniture, etc.

This is but the beginning of expansion in the store and plans are simmering for a still greater enlargement of the floor space.

Mrs. Florence Crawford of Binghampton, New York, is visiting her brother and family, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Couse of 245 North Maryland avenue.

George Stanley, who has been attending Berkeley, will arrive in Glendale Sunday to spend a month here with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. N. H. Stanley of 738 South Maryland avenue.

GLENDALE SCOUTS TO INVITE YOU TO XMAS TREE

Everyone to Be Asked to Attend Christmas Sing

Open the doors wide tomorrow morning, for the Glendale Boy Scouts are going to go to each home in the city and present you with a special invitation to attend the big community Christmas sing to be held Monday evening, December 18, at the high school auditorium. Everybody in Glendale is invited to come and enjoy the singing of the Christmas carols and the unique musical program to follow which will be under the personal leadership of Alexander Stewart, Pacific Coast music organizer of Community Service.

The Glendale Boy Scouts are urged to report at the District Scout office, 103½ South Brand boulevard tomorrow morning by 9:30 for this special good turn to the people through the Community Service of Glendale.

Deck the Hall

Deck the halls with boughs of holly,
Fa la la la la la la la la.
'Tis the season to be jolly,
Fa la la la la la la la la.
Don we now our gay apparel,
Fa la la la la la la.
Troll the ancient Yuletide carol,
Fa la la la la la la la la.

See the blazing Yule before us,
Fa la la la la la la la la.
Strike the harp and join the chorus,
Fa la la la la la la la la.
Follow me in merry measure,
Fa la la la la la la.
While I tell of Yuletide treasure,
Fa la la la la la la la la.

Fast away the old year passes,
Fa la la la la la la la la.
Hail the new, ye lads and lasses,
Fa la la la la la la la la.
Sing we joyous, all together,
Fa la la la la la la.
Heedless of the wind and weather,
Fa la la la la la la la la.

Many nations have Christmas songs, but the gay carol is found principally in the British Isles. Before these island people were Christianized they had a mid-winter festival called Yule which was a season of merrymaking. Songs were used which not only called forth lusty rollicking singing but also stimulated dancing and frolicking. When Christianity was established in England, the missionaries instead of attempting to suppress the carols, which were the popular music of the day, encouraged their use with the new religious interpretation of Christmas. Frequently the texts were slightly changed, or even entirely rewritten in order to present the Christian idea, but occasionally, on the theory that "a principal point of charity, it is to be merry," the old pagan songs were preserved in their original forms.

"Deck the Hall" is one of this type. It comes from Wales, that land of hearty singing. It vividly pictures the household preparation for the joyful feast. The famous Christmas puddings mingle their odors with those of the fresh evergreens of holly and mistletoe which hang in garlands to "deck the hall." The kitchen and hall ring with the sound of happy voices. At midnight of Christmas eve the Yule log, decorated with all kinds of devices and garnished with evergreens is brought in with a procession of lights, banners, and songs and placed in the middle of the room. Each one present was expected to sit on it and sing a Yule song. Certainly one that they trolled lustily was this carol beloved of old and young.

LODGES — CLUBS — CHURCHES

MRS. H. V. BROWN ENTERTAINS MATRONS

Mrs. H. V. Brown, of 227 North Louise street, entertained the Los Angeles City Matrons club of 1913 at her home on Thursday afternoon. This was the regular monthly meeting of the club.

A delicious luncheon was served at noon, the table being artistically arrayed with holly. A pleasant social afternoon was enjoyed and the ladies voted to send $10 to the Children's Orthopedic hospital for their Christmas.

Covers were laid for Mrs. E. M. Frost, Mrs. Fannie Hall, Mrs. J. L. Butler, Mrs. Ella May Chandler, all of Los Angeles, Mrs. Gertrude Baldwin and Mrs. H. V. Henry of Glendale.

LYDIA BIBLE CLASS MEETS AT LENNOX HOME

The Lydia Bible class of the First Presbyterian Church met Thursday afternoon with Mrs. H. M. Lennox on Pacific avenue. There were 22 ladies present.

Mrs. J. P. Thompson, president of the class, resigned as she is leaving Saturday for Philadelphia. Mrs. M. Ball was elected to fill the vacancy. Mrs. W. E. McCormick presented Mrs. Thompson with a framed motto as a remembrance from the class.

Following a very pleasant social afternoon, Mrs. Lennox served dainty refreshments. The next meeting will be held January 11 at the home of Mrs. Mottern, on North Adams street.

MRS. E. T. REMMEN ENTERTAINS ARTS AND CRAFTS

Mrs. E. T. Remmen of 1013 North Louise street entertained Arts and Crafts Section No. 2, of the Tuesday Afternoon Club at her home Thursday afternoon, Mrs. Harry James is curator of this section.

There were 30 ladies present who devoted their time to decorating baskets with composition fruits and flowers.

This section will meet again next Tuesday, December 19, at the home of Mrs. George Robinson, 226 West Elk avenue, at which time the baskets will be completed.

COMBINED BROTHERHOODS TO DINE THIS EVENING

Members of the Brotherhood of the First Methodist church of this city, and of the Epworth League, are to combine this evening in a dinner which will be served in the banquet hall of the church at 7 o'clock. Following the dinner separate meetings of the two organizations will be held. A delegation of Japanese men who are residents of Glendale will be the special guests of the Brotherhood and of Dr. Julius Soper who will introduce them.

DOROTHY WATSON TO ENTERTAIN MUSICIANS

Members of the Junior Auxiliary of the Glendale Music club of which Miss Gertrude Heideman is president, will be entertained Saturday, December 16, at the home of Dorothy Watson, 526 North Central avenue, when a musical and social evening will be enjoyed of a Christmas character.

MRS. E. MASTERS ENTERTAINS WOMEN'S SOCIETY

Mrs. E. Masters, of 330 East Fairview avenue, entertained the Women's Foreign Missionary Society of Casa Verdugo Methodist Church on Thursday afternoon. There was a very good attendance and the meeting proved most interesting.

Dr. Livingston, pastor, conducted the lesson on the study of India. This was followed by several musical numbers, and a contest on answering questions from the mystery box. Mrs. Masters used a miniature Christmas tree by way of decoration and served nuts, candy and raisins, each being presented with a package beautifully wrapped in holly paper and tied with red ribbon, containing the refreshments.

W. W. Whitmore, from Denver, Colorado, is viting his sister, Mrs. W. C. Wodke, 1128 San Rafael avenue. At present he is in San Diego where he will meet Mrs. Whitmore and the two will return to Glendale for a longer visit.

THURSDAY MORNING WOMEN'S BIBLE CLASS

When the Thursday Morning Bible class for women, assembled yesterday morning in the Presbyterian church, unfavorable weather conditions seemed to have had no effect on the attendance, as there were one hundred and twenty-five present. The teacher, Mrs. A. L. Dennis, spoke with her usual interest. Following up the former lessons she told of the significance and symbolism of the laver in the tabernacle worship.

Assistant Secretary Sanders goes to Corona tonight to address the chamber of commerce of that city.

Mr. and Mrs. Clauson and daughter, Miriam, from Indiana, have purchased a new home at 1133 San Rafael avenue. They will make Glendale their permanent home.

FAREWELL PARTY TO MYRTLE EVRAETS

A gay party of twenty young people gathered at 410 West Colorado last evening, the occasion being a farewell party for Miss Myrtle Evraets. The evening was spent in singing and dancing, and just before refreshments were served, the Ro-Daire club presented Miss Evraets with a traveling bag. Miss Evraets is leaving Saturday, 8 p. m., for Green Bay, Wis., her former home. She will go by way of the Canadian Pacific, arriving at her destination the night of December 23.

LADIES OF ST. MARK'S MAKE CANDY SACKS

The ladies of St. Mark's Guild met Thursday afternoon at 2:30 in the Guild hall, Mrs. Mortimer Baker, president in the chair.

After a short business session, the remainder of the afternoon was spent in making candy sacks to be used on the Christmas tree, the entertainment to come the latter part of this week at the church. Definite announceemnt as to date will be made later.

KELLEYS ENTERTAIN VISITING Y. M. C. A. LEADERS

Mr. and Mrs. Rex C. Kelley of 416 East Lorraine street entertained as their guests at dinner last night the Y. M. C. A. leaders of Glendale and Burbank. Their guests included E. B. Thomas and T. E. Stevenson of Burbank, Harry Rasmus, W. E. Stevenson, T. M. Rogers, Ed Echlotzhauor, Harold Majors, J. F. Gasser, W. G. Boyd, Glenn Todd, G. E. Murphy, Gordon Mize of Glendale, and F. P. Knapp, who is secretary of county work for the state of California. After dinner those present discussed the work of the various groups and the evening was given over to the demonstration of stunts that could be put on to entertain the boys. Mr. Kelley is the local Y. M. C. A. secretary.

PRESBYTERIANS DEFEAT TROPICO BROTHERS

The major league team of the First Presbyterian church defeated the team from the Tropico Presbyterian church by a score of 16 to 12 at a game played at the high school gymnasium Thursday night in connection with the Glendale church school league, which is a part of the athletic program of Glendale Community Service. Howard Butterfield was referee for the game and the players included the following: Tropico Presbyterian—John Server, Herbert Bruck, Walter Sullivan, Russell Lee and Mr. Oldham; First Presbyterian—Stanley Johns, Kenneth Wilde, Thomas McClellan, Bert Foster and Thomas McIver.

AUTO ACCIDENTS

Automobiles driven by Arthur A. Roach, 1108 Monterey road, and M. O. Packard of Los Angeles, collided on Glendale avenue near Monterey road, at 12:15 o'clock Thursday night. No one was injured.

Another accident occurred when an automobile driven by William Thomas of Tujunga and a machine operated by Aaron King of Los Angeles, came together, the accident occurring at the corner of Laural and Brand at 11:30 o'clock yesterday morning. The damage was slight.

BUSINESS WOMEN TO HOLD 'KID' PARTY

The Christmas meeting of the Business and Professional Women's club will be held Tuesday evening, December 19, at 8 p. m., at the club house, 126 South Maryland. It will be a "kid" party with appropriate costuming, and it is hoped that every member, particularly the new ones will be there. Each guest is asked to bring some inexpensive toy for some other guest and these at the close of the evening will be collected to be dispatched to the Monte Vista home or some other appropriate beneficiary. It will also be a donation party for the club house of small gifts such as soap, package groceries, etc.

A program of games will be in charge of Miss Corinne Orff who has been taking the Community Service leadership course, and there will be other stunts of a Christmas character.

LOCAL COLLEGE WOMEN'S CLUB IS PLANNED

A group of college women met Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. A. L. Ferguson, 525 North Jackson street, to discuss and make plans for the organization of a local College Women's club. It was generally agreed that Glendale is more than large enough to support an organization of this kind and that there are between 200 and 300 women in Glendale and surrounding community who would be interested and eligible to such a club.

It was decided to adopt the same requirements for entrance as those of the Los Angeles University Women's club, namely: two years of full academic work in any college or university having a four years' course and granting the degree of A. B. Mrs. A. L. Ferguson was named temporary chairman. Further details and announcements of the first meeting, which will be held some time during the month of January, will be made later.

Plans for this organization were heartily endorsed by those present, which included Mrs. E. W. W. Hayward, Mrs. Frank Parr, Mrs. Paul E. Webb, Mrs. Warren Roberts, Mrs. Julian Hayward, Miss Aileen Renison, Mrs. G. A. Gallager, Mrs. Moyer, Mrs. D. F. Reichard, Mrs. Chalmers Day and Mrs. Ferguson.

Jasper—"I haven't a good word for that feller Jim."

Dexter—"Well, they ain't much good said about him. But I'll say one thing about Jim, he wasn't always as mean as he was sometimes."

A DAILY TOUR OF GLENDALE STORES

ANDERSON DRY GOODS ON EAST BROADWAY IS XMAS TREASURE HOUSE

If you have not visited the Carl Anderson Dry Goods company at 516 East Broadway, you have in store for you a treat in the form of a treasure trove of both useful and dainty articles from which to make your selection for Christmas gifts.

If you are looking for Christmas tree ornaments, greeting cards, tissue and wrapping paper for your gifts, fancy boxes and ribbons, you will also find them at this well-stocked store. For the kiddies there is a selection of books, toys, games, sweater sets, house slippers and many useful articles.

The gift of an attractively covered comforter or pair of blankets is always appropriate for the home. House dresses and aprons combining cretonnes and crepe, satines or gingnams are also shown. There are some very dainty boudoir caps, collar and cuff sets, bertha collars in lace and nets, bead necklaces, silk sweaters and many, many articles of handiwork anyone of which would make a most acceptible holiday gift. Mr. Anderson also carries a stock of pocketbooks.

For "him" you are sure to find just the right kind of ties from large assortment in a wide range of colors and designs which are shown at this store. Perhaps he needs a cap, and if so you will be able to find that here too. Mr. Anderson also includes a stock of men's shirts, and what would make a better gift for "father" or you might make your selection from a wide assortment of accessories.

These are but a few suggestions of the many interesting articles displayed at the Carl Anderson Dry Goods company and upon visiting this place of business you will be more than pleased at the reasonable prices for which you may make your purchase.

The reformers in this country seem to have a lot of spare time and a tremendous amount of enterprise and energy. I suggest that they devote themselves to the task of bringing some joy into the lives of college professors and their wives.

Trouble is the most obliging thing in the world. It will never dodge the fellow who is looking for it.

HARRY SWARTZ IS SPEAKER BEFORE CENTRAL P.-T. A.

The speaker at the regular meeting of the Central avenue Parent-Teachers' association, of which Mrs. D. F. Reichard is president, held at the school Thursday afternoon was Harry Swartz, the sculptor, who resides at La Ramada. His topic was "Art" and proved most interesting. The meeting opened with the flag salute and singing of "America," by Miss Taylor, teacher of the third grade. This was preceded by a short executive board meeting at which the officers discussed the matter of purchasing a new phonograph for the school. No action was taken. The program for the afternoon also included several vocal selections given by Mrs. J. Burris, including "My Desire" and a French song.

The room count of the mothers present was taken and the basket of flowers was awarded to Miss Taylor's room for the month. At the close of the afternoon refreshments of tea and cake were served by the hospitality committee.

Every woman is entitled to more than one hat in seven years, and if it is necessary for the professors to strike in order to obtain a hat for their wives I suggest this slogan:

A GIFT THAT'S SURE TO SATISFY

Such a magnificent variety of neckwear to choose from here! No matter how discriminating the man, you're sure to get an enthusiastic "Thank You" when he gets a box of the superb Ties that we are now offering at special values.

GLENDALE DOCTORS ARE GUESTS OF SANITARIUM

Dr. Zeiler Gives Technical Address and Musical Program Follows

The Glendale Sanitarium and Hospital gave a banquet to fifty of the physicians and surgeons Thursday night at 7 o'clock at the sanitarium, with Dr. A. H. Zeiler, specialist, of Los Angeles as the principal speaker for the evening. Dr. H. G. Vestphal, president of the Glendale Physicians' club was toastmaster for the occasion.

Dr. Zeiler gave a very technical address on "Central Nervous Lues" which was appreciated by the physicians. The interesting program for the evening also included piano numbers by Mrs. Schaffner; vocal selections by Mrs. Ochs, accompanied by Mrs. Schaffner; demonstration of playing on a saw by James Elwood Moore, who also gave several violin numbers, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Johnson.

Applications for membership in the Glendale Physicians' club were made by the following, who were also present at the banquet: Dr. E. T. Remmen, Dr. L. Flewelling, Dr. D. A. Vaker, Dr. J. Belyea, Dr. C. A. Hefty, Dr. Riley Russell, Dr. J. Anderson, Dr. P. S. Traxler, Dr. A. D. Smith, and Dr. O. E. Ghrist. Special out-of-town guests were Drs. Moore and Watson of Hollywood, who recently came to California from Wisconsin.

The banquet and program given by the Glendale Sanitarium and Hospital proved to be a most enjoyable affair. The committee in charge of arrangements for the dinner included Mrs. Ida Ringstrom, Miss Veda Marsh, Mrs. J. W. Harris and Miss Emily Armstrong.

It costs a man a good deal to live up to his ideals. That's the reason many a man can't afford to get married.

Representative Keller, Who Asks Impeachment of Attorney General

Fourteen charges are included in the bill of particulars furnished by Representative Oscar E. Keller of Minnesota, on his resolution that Attorney General Harry M. Daugherty be impeached on the grounds of unfitness to occupy his present post. Chief among the charges are allegations denouncing Mr. Daugherty as refusing to prosecute violations of the anti-trust laws and with favoritism toward coroporate interests, including J. P. Morgan & Co. Among the witnesses Mr. Keller says he will demand that the judiciary committee subpoena are Chief Justice Taft, former Attorney General Wickersham and Samuel Gompers.

CAMPAIGN AGAINST CANINES IS ENDED

City Health Dept. Calls Off Its Crew of Dog Grabbers

The rabies quarantine has been lifted.

Whereupon the owners of weiner material are breathing a great, big sigh of relief.

According to the city health department, the rabies situation which made the quarantine against allowing dogs and cats to run at large a necessity, has been relieved and there is no longer need of it.

Things are "looking up" for Fido and Maria. Doubtless they will gather on the back fence at midnight to celebrate the event.

PROGRESSIVES OF SENATE AND HOUSE CONFERRING ON LEGISLATIVE REFORMS

This photograph was made during the first session of federal lawmakers who met in Washington under the leadership of Senator La Follette of Wisconsin. This session was held behind closed doors. Sentaor La Follette made the opening address and Senator G. W. Norris of Nebraska was temporary chairman. Senator La Follette is seen seated second from the left. Senator Norris is seated at the extreme right.

PATTERSON PARK TO BE IMPROVED BY THE CITY

Council Sets Aside $10,000 for the Conduct of the Work

The Glendale city council approved the plans for the beautification of the Patterson avenue park, at its meeting Thursday night, and set aside $10,000 for the work proposed. The two following resolutions were adopted:

Resolved, that the plans prepared by H. F. Bryan, and now presented to the council for the parking and improvement of the city park at the corner of Patterson avenue and Kenilworth avenue, commonly known as the Patterson avenue park, are hereby adopted and approved as the plans to be followed in all improvements of said park.

Resolved, that the sum of $10,000 is hereby appropriated from the unappropriated reserve of the park, playground and recreation center fund for the purpose of making improvements in the city park at the corner of Patterson avenue and Kenilworth avenue, commonly known as the Patterson avenue park.

MAGNOLIA AVENUE IMPROVEMENTS ORDERED

The city attorney and engineer were instructed to start proceedings for the improvement of Magnolia Avenue, from Central to San Fernando road, with 3-inch macadam and sidewalks.

Maps of Tracts Nos. 5719 and 5543 were accepted and approved.

"You see that stout old chap in the corner?" asked Brown.

"Yes," answered Jones.

"He's a marvelous acrobat."

"Nonsense! He looks like a stockbroker."

"Quite right—he is."

"But what about this acrobat idea?"

"He's both. I asked yesterday whether there was much doing and he said: 'My boy, I just hang on from day to day, keeping my nose above water by the skin of my teeth.'"

CAMP GROUNDS' REQUIREMENTS ORDERED

Council Directs Dr. Kaemmerling to Specify Health Regulation

F. H. Hatfield, proprietor of the auto camping ground at the corner of Riverdale and San Fernando road, appeared before the council for the purpose of showing cause why his permit to operate the camp ground should not be revoked. City Health Officer Dr. G. Kaemmerling, Health Inspector Vissman and Chief of Police Fraser testified that the place is ill kept and unsanitary. The defendant was represented by Attorney G. H. King. At the close of the hearing the council instructed Dr. Kaemmerling and the city attorney to draft an ordinance specifically stating what camps of this kind must and must not do in the future.

CITY DADS WERE BUSY LAST NIGHT

As there were no protests against the improvement of Columbus avenue, the next step in this work was ordered taken.

A resolution from the Doran street Parent-Teachers' Association asking that the sidewalk around that school be improved along with the streets, was received. The city engineer was instructed to make an estimate of the cost of the improvement of the streets before the schools of the city and to report as soon as possible. The city engineer stated that in connection with all the street work being done before with school grounds, iron pipe, which was not included in the estimate, is being laid.

On hearing that it would cost the city something over $100 to reopen the case, A. J. Badger withdrew his demand for a readjustment of assessments on Pacific avenue.

The Los Angeles Paving company was granted an extension of 60 days on the improvement of Los Feliz road.

The following resolution were adopted:

An ordinance establishing the grade on a portion of Doran street, and establishing curb lines on a portion of Doran street and Concord street was introduced and declared read for the first time.

An ordinance establishing the grade on a portion of Winchester avenue, was introduced, and read.

An ordinance establishing the grade on a portion of California avenue and establishing the curb lines thereon was introduced.

An ordinance was introduced for the opening and widening of Fifth street.

An ordinance regulating billboards in the city of Glendale was adopted.

Bids for castiron pipe were opened and referred to the superintendent of the plant and production department.

The superintendent of plant and production was granted an extension of thirty days on the replacing of the pavement on Broadway.

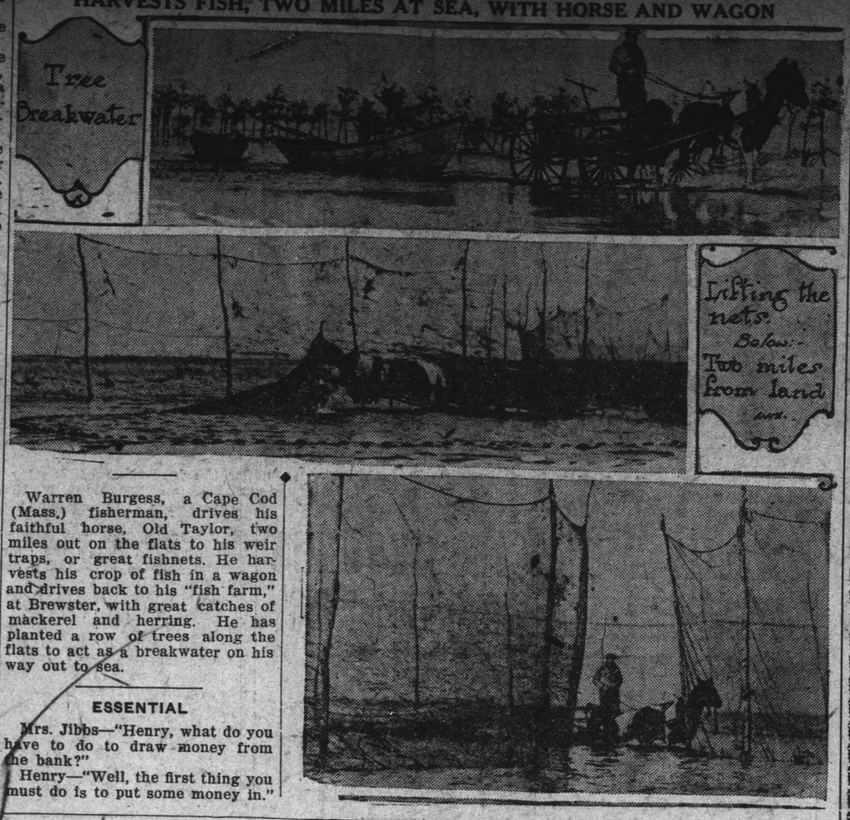
Map of tract No. 5916 was approved.

A NEW DEAL

Mrs. Borden-Lodge—"Did you change the table napkins as I told you?"

Annie (the maid)—"Yes'm, I shuffled 'em up an' dealt 'em out so no one gets the same as he had at breakfast."

HARVESTS FISH, TWO MILES AT SEA, WITH HORSE AND WAGON



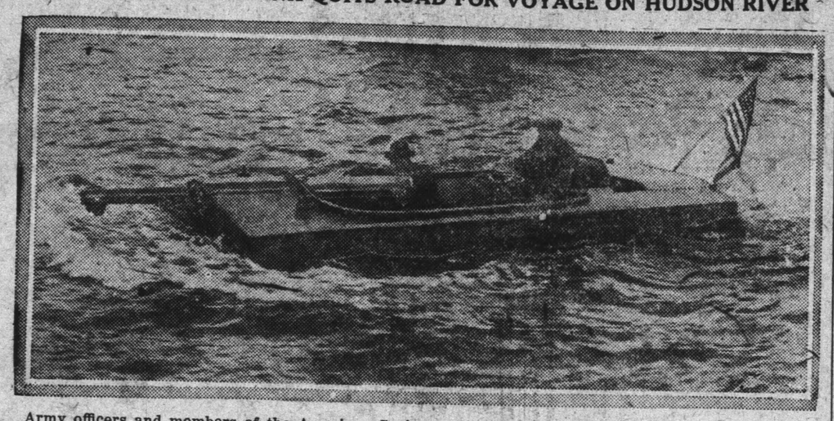
Warren Burgess, a Cape Cod (Mass.) fisherman, drives his faithful horse, Old Taylor, two miles out on the flats to his weir traps, or great fishnets. He harvests his crop of fish in a wagon and drives back to his "fish farm," at Brewster, with great catches of mackerel and herring. He has planted a row of trees along the flats to act as a breakwater on his way out to sea.

ESSENTIAL

Mrs. Jibbs—"Henry, what do you have to do to draw money from the bank?"

Henry—"Well, the first thing you must do is to put some money in."

AMPHIBIOUS ARMY TANK QUITS ROAD FOR VOYAGE ON HUDSON RIVER



Army officers and members of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers witnessed tests at New York city of the new Christie tank which is designed for road, field and water service. The fighting machine, which carries a 75-millimeter field gun, first made thirty miles an hour on ordinary roads. Caterpillar chains were then adjusted and the machine averaged twelve miles over rough going. After roaring down from a steep knoll the tank rushed into the Hudson river above the city and crossed at the rate of six miles an hour. The armored top was not adjusted during the tests. The inventor of the tank is Walter Christie, well known some years ago as a dare-devil automobile racer.

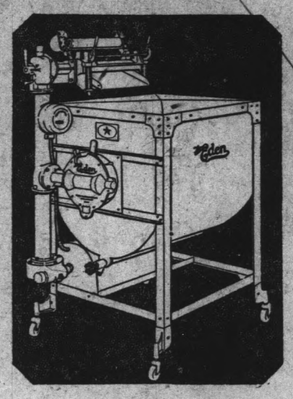
Electrical Gifts
TO HELP HER
Practical Gifts Are Remembered Throughout the Year

We have notice that The Eden and other washers ADVANCE in price Jan. 1st.

Order one "For Her" Now. It will save her strength—your money and all your clothes.



Give Her a Royal

We don't advise any husband to buy nothing but housekeeping appliances for his wife. We'd have all the wives mad at us, at that rate.

Buy pretty things, of course. Wives love them, and we don't blame them.

But those are fancies that wear themselves out in a few brief weeks. Add to them a ROYAL Electric Cleaner and you've got a balanced Christmas that will make every day a reminder of your thoughtfulness.

The reason you should buy the ROYAL, instead of some ordinary cleaner, is that the ROYAL, with powerful suction alone, gets ALL the dirt that others cannot dislodge. And what good is a cleaner, anyway, that doesn't get ALL the dirt?

Make it a ROYAL Christmas!

Our ROYAL Man will demonstrate how the ROYAL cleans better than any other cleaner.

FOOD VALUE OF EGGS

"In using eggs we are availing ourselves of one of nature's richest storehouses," says Miss Mary E. Sutherland, nutrition specialist for the extension division of the State College of Washington.

"They contain so much fuel, energy and tissue building materials as to be almost a perfect food in themselves.

"Eggs are rich in phosphorus, calcium and iron in organic combination. Protein in the form of albumin is found in the white. Fat in a finely emulsified form, similar to the fat in milk, is found in the yolk. The protein contains sodium chloride (common salt), potassium salts and sulphur, all necessary in perfect health. The iron compound forms the material from which the hemoglobin of red blood corpuscles is made."

COAL RUSH ON AT BREESPORT OF ERIN, N. Y.

ELMIRA, N. Y., Dec. 15.—The coal—not gold—rush is on.

Coal prospectors by the score are swarming to Breesport, town of Erin, near here, to stake out claims, following the accidental discovery of coal veins through the digging activities of a stray woodchuck.

Claims are being staked out on farms, the filing notices being posted in true Western fashion on stakes. The coal vein or veins just uncovered run through the farms of Josua Staples, Elijah Ennis, William Little and Herbert Staples.

Breesport residents have tested samples of the coal in their ranges and report unanimously that the anthracite is of excellent quality and makes a red-hot fire.

That the vein of coal extends to the east to Rorick Hollow has been established. Thanks to the coal finds, farm values hereabouts today are booming. Lands previously on the market have been withdrawn, as the owners see visions of new riches through mine development.

Landowners probably will form a stock company to sink experimental shafts to determine the full extent of the underlying coal fields. Representatives of coal interests just prior to the lucky discovery via a woodchuck's hole had been quietly canvassing the district, making suggestions of tentative offers.

The rights of those who have staked and filed coal claims on farming lands that they do (not own form a puzzling problem. Whether the western practice will be legal in this state is a question. Farmowners are consulting counsel, admittedly worried over the claims already staked out.

While southern New York has its "coal rush" the gold fever holds the north country in its grip now, with Edwards as the center.

Gold is reported found on the Stammer farm there, and a New York corporation, taking over the property, is preparing to start gold mining operations without delay. Necessary machinery is now being shipped in.

During the last summer experts have been at work developing a process by which gold can be separated from the sands. It is reported that there is at least $600 worth of gold in every ton of Edwards dirt.

An active churchman attends church services regularly, taking his young son with him. Usually the youngster makes no trouble, but on a recent Sunday the minister was waxing eloquent on the subject of the "Future State of the Church."

As his voice rose in power and volume, he made the rafters ring with the question: "I ask you what shall be the future glory of the church?"

A brief pause for breath, and he continued: "I repeat, what shall be the future glory of the church?"

The young hopeful turned to his father and said: "You tell him, daddy, and let's go."

The defendant, held in an Ohio court on the charge of keeping a dog without a license, repeatedly tried to interrupt the evidence, but was hushed each time. Finally, the clerk turned to him and said: "Do you wish the court to understand that you refuse to renew your dog license?"

"Yes, but——"

"We want no ... You must renew your li... or be fined. You know it e... on January 1."

"Yes," said th... ndant, "and so did the dog." ...buts. ...nse

Article No. 13.

Bids in Support of Partner's No Trump

It is much easier to state the requirements for assisting a No Trump than for assisting a suit bid. In the latter case the chances of a suit being trumped, the number of trumps held, singletons, trump honors all combine to make the requirements for assisting a suit bid both complex and difficult. In a No Trump bid, however, no element appears except the high cards, and it is easy to determine their value by the rules already developed. Quick tricks are what count in a No Trump, and the number of tricks a hand is worth in support of a partner's original No Trump bid, is just double its quick trick values. An original No Trump by first or second hand requires at least two quick tricks distributed in at least three suits. It also presumes as part of the bid at least one and one-half quick tricks in partner's hand, the so-called average expectancy of support. It follows, therefore, that the partner of a No Trump bid by first or second hand can raise the No Trump bid once for each half quick trick in excess of one and one-half, the number of quick tricks which partner expects him to hold when making the bid. Another element enters into the question when a suit bid is made over the No Trump. In such a case, the partner of the No Trump bidder should not raise the bid unless holding a stopper in the suit bid, even though he may have the necessary number of quick tricks to do so. The following example hands presume a No Trump bid by first hand and an overbid of two Clubs by second hand. The quick trick values have been doubled:

Hearts — 10, 9, 6, (0 trick)
Clubs — A, 4, 2, (2 tricks)
Diamonds — K, 7, 4, 2, (1 trick)
Spades — Q, J, 10, (1 trick)

This hand has a stopper in the suit bid and two quick tricks so the proper bid is two No Trump.

Hearts — 9, 7, (0 trick)
Clubs — Q, 10, 9, 7, 6, (1½ trick)
Diamonds — A, 4, 2, (2 tricks)
Spades — K, 4, 2, (1 trick)

This hand is too strong in the Club suit for a two No Trump bid so should double two Clubs. Partner must then use his judgment whether to bid two No Trump or play for the penalty.

Hearts — A, Q, 2, (2½ tricks)
Clubs — 10, 7, 4, (0 trick)
Diamonds — K, 4, 2, (1 trick)
Spades — J, 10, 7, 6, (0 trick)

This hand is too weak to bid two No Trump, and therefore should pass.

Hearts — A, K, 2, (4 tricks)
Clubs — 7, 4, 2, (0 trick)
Diamonds — A, 4, 3, 2, (2 tricks)
Spades — Q, 4, 2, (½ trick)

This hand is so strong that two No Trump is the proper bid, even though it hasn't a stopper in the Club suit. It is almost a certainty that partner has the Club suit stopped, and if so, should make game at No Trump.

Hearts — Q, 7, 6, (1½ trick)
Clubs — K, J, 10, (1½ tricks)
Diamonds — Q, J, 7, 6, (1 trick)
Spades — 10, 9, 8, (0 trick)

This hand contains only the average expectancy of support, one and one-half quick tricks, but the fact that it has the Club suit stopped twice makes it a sound two No Trumper.

It should be noted that when an original No Trump has been bid by third or fourth hands, partner may assist the bid if he has only the average expectancy of support, that is, one and one-half quick tricks. This is also true in case partner has bid two No Trump originally or has bid two No Trump over an adverse suit bid either without hearing partner or after partner has passed. The theory of such bids is that they show much greater strength than original No Trump bids by first or second hands, and therefore may be assisted with less strength, that is, with only average expectancy. The following hand presumes an original bid of one No Trump by dealer, two Clubs by fourth hand, two No Trumps by dealer and three Clubs by second hand. Dealer's partner holds:

Hearts — K, 4, 3, 2, (1 trick)
Clubs — 7, 6, (0 trick)
Diamonds — A, 9, 7, 6, (2 tricks)
Spades — 10, 6, 2, (0 trick)

With this hand, dealer's partner has a sound three No Trump bid, with only one and one-half quick tricks.

Suppose the dealer makes an original bid of two No Trump and fourth hand bids three Hearts, and dealer and second hand pass. With the following hand, dealer's partner should bid three No Trump, even though holding only average expectancy:

Hearts — A, 4, 2, (2 tricks)
Clubs — 10, 9, 8, (0 trick)
Diamonds — K, 7, 6, 2, (1 trick)
Spades — 7, 4, 2, (0 trick)

The requirements then for assisting an original No Trump by first or second hands are two: first, a stopper in the suit bid; and second, at least two quick tricks. The exceptions have already been noted.

The Once Over

By H. I. PHILLIPS

"KING TIMOTHY THE FIRST"

If these were the days of kings in Ireland we'd now be addressing one Timothy Healy as King Tim the First. For "Tim" Healy, as he likes to be called, is the first chief of the Irish Almost-Free State.

* * *

Healys all over the world are with him to the finish, which is a big advantage over Eamonn De Valera, who is under the handicap of not being able to find another Irishman by that name in the universe.

* * *

With the formal swearing in of Mr. Healy the Irish Not-Quite-Free State came into being, with the right to have a Senate, House, cabinet, and an Airedale just like the United States.

* * *

Ireland gets the right to run its own postoffices, and hereafter England will read letters not addressed to it at its peril. An Irish postage stamp was immediately printed. It's the only thing each side agrees the other can lick.

* * *

The English flag was hauled down from Dublin government buildings and the Irish flag raised in its place. This had been done hundreds of times before, but it was the first time it ever was done with English consent. Naturally, hauling down an English flag without opposition rather took the fun out of the thing.

* * *

Of course, "King Timothy" will not be crowned. That is, if he can help it. Then, there is always a possibility some Republican leaders may break in on him and crown him in their own way. A lot of men have been crowned in Ireland of late who hadn't planned on it.

* * *

Mr. Healy's real title is governor general. He'll be the head of the Irish Almost-Free State with the understanding that he will take certain orders from King George. A good fight should be had by all about the time King George tries to make him do it.

* * *

He went through all the formalities a few days back. Custom required that he kiss the hand of the English King. King George was very nervous about this part of the ceremony, and, as a matter of safety, suspended this part of the program.

* * *

He had read about an English king who lost an arm that way once.

* * *

Following official approval by the British parliament, the Irish Free State became one of the dominions of the British empire. Just like Canada and Australia, only louder and snappier.

* * *

A cabinet was then named, the Messrs. Higgins, Mulcahey, MacNeill, McGrath, Cosgrave and Fitzgerald getting the places. That sounds like a "he" cabinet. No government will rush silly ultimatums to that group, it's a safe bet, without getting quick action.

* * *

No secretary of war was formally appointed. It is held that every Irishman has the right to be his own secretary of war under present conditions in Ireland.

* * *

Governor General Healy closed with a speech promising "equal fights for all," and the ceremony wound up with the singing of "Tim Healy is a Grand Old Name," especially written by George Cohan, the Irish consul to New York.

FILM ANSWERS THE QUERY OF THE WHY OF CROOK

The deep and seemingly inescapable problem of why a crook can't go straight when he want to, provides the theme for "Broad Daylight," the Universal all-star production coming to the United theater, Eagle Rock, on Saturday.

Moralists hold forth eternally about the welcome the world exteds to a lost sheep that staggers back into the fold. Criminals, they say, find a ready chance to reform and lead a model life, once they establish the fact that they really want to do so.

Irving Cummings, director of "Broad Daylight," and Harvey Gates and George W. Pyper, who wrote the story, disagree with this popular conception radically. They picture the path of the reformed criminal as worse than anything old mythology pictures as the sufferings of victims of the gods' wrath.

For a vivid story of the underworld as it really is and criminals as they are in real life and not in fiction, Cummings secured an exceptionally good cast. Lois Wilson, Jack Mulhall, Ralph Lewis, Ben Hewlett, Wilton Taylor, Kenneth Gibson and Robert M. Walker have the principal parts.

"GALLOPING KID" AT THE GLENDALE THEATER

Hoot Gibson adds another to his long string of successes with the showing of "The Galloping Kid," his latest Universal starring vehicle at the Glendale theater.

The story is one of the "Misfit" series by William H. Hamby, and depicts the wanderings of a hobo cowboy whose particular aversion is work and everything pertaining to it. Then, out of the blue, comes a job chaperoning a cattleman's only daughter and the Galloping Kid suddenly realizes that work is not so bad after all and prepares to make good on his new assignment. It is distinctly a Gibson role and the popular Universal star does it complete justice.

The leading feminine role is played by Edna Murphy, who, playing ingenue parts but two years ago, is knocking today at the portals of stardom. Others having important parts in the supporting cast are Lionel Belmore, Leon Barry, Percy Challenger, Jack Walters and Steve Clemento.

When the exterior scenes for "The Galloping Kid" were filmed at Montezuma castle in the Arizona desert, history was made, as never before had the famous Inca stronghold been photographed for a motion picture production.

Nat Ross, who supervised the filming of "The Galloping Kid," is one of the younger types of directors who has risen to his present position from the ranks and whose wide and detailed experience qualifies him to direct Universal feature productions.

"THE HALF BREED" AT THE T. D. & L. THEATER

The attractions at the T., D. & L. Theatre today are two fold and first there is "The Half Breed," the famous Oliver Morossco play with Wheeler Oakman, another dramatic offering by Morossco as a photoplay producer. "The Half Breed" as a stage play and novel has long been a favorite and should prove popular in the films. The other attraction is the special comedy feature, "The Three Must-Get-Theres," with the internationally known comedian, Max Linder. It is some show.

Saturday there will be special vaudeville at the T., D. & L. Theatre, in addition to the pictures. The Bohemian Four, Quartette and Oriental Dance being the specialties offered.

Sunday the much heralded "East is West," with Constance Talmadge, will start its engagement at the T., D. & L.

STARVATION IS AGAIN HOVERING OVER RUSSIA

LONDON, Dec. 15—Two hundred and fifty thousand people are already approaching starvation in Tzaritzin and the local Soviet authorities have as yet made no plans for their relief. This statement was made here recently by Dorsey Stephens, of Los Angeles, Cal., former supervisor of the American Relief administration in that Gubernia, who has just reached London on his way home.

This year's crop in Tzaritzin amounts to between 19,000,000 and 20,000,000 poods, Mr. Stephens said, of which five million are being collected as a grain tax. Compared with the normal crop of sixty million this makes a poor showing, and consequently the district is classed among the "shortage areas" of which there are several this year in Russia, despite the good general average harvest.

"No, I never hunt for ideas," the eminent author assured her. "When I feel in the mood for work I climb to the summit of a hill and there, with the scent of the mountain pine in my nostrils, I find my inspiration."

"Just fancy!" gushed the girl. "And then you descend and write it all down, I suppose?"

"Indeed I don't. That would be a sure way of losing it. I carry my little typewriter up with me."

"Oh, how good of you! But does she—er—does she never turn giddy or anything?"

LUCK OR SCIENCE?

"Mr. Tombson has a great deal of Scotch in his veins," said Mrs. Tipper, looking up from her sewing.

"Lucky man," groaned Mr. Tipper.

Matty, Almost Himself Again, Aiding Others in White Plague Battle

For thirty months Christy Mathewson, famous baseball player, has been fighting the battle of his life against tuberculosis at Saranac Lake, N. Y. His condition has improved so much that his physician gave him permission to go to New York City for a week to aid in the sale of Christmas seals, the proceeds of which are used in the great fight against the white plague. Matty proved a great success as a salesman of the little seals. He is shown here with his hands full of them.

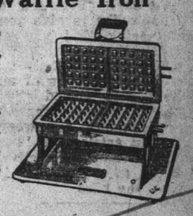
Give ELECTRICAL Gifts

ELECTRIC APPLIANCES should play an important part in your gift list, especially those "ELECTRIC SERVANTS" that save hours of toil and drudgery. THE OFFERINGS below suggest electrical gifts, useful as well as decorative, that may be purchased at small outlay. Of course, the better choice comes from buying now!

Electric Waffle Iron

An Electric Waffle Iron makes Hot, Crisp Waffles; makes No Grease; makes No Smoke. Baked and served right at the table. Can you think of a better gift?

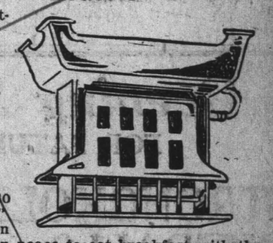


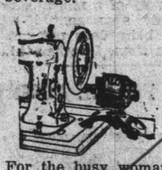
Electric Coffee Urn

If you are in doubt as to the selection of a suitable Christmas Gift for the home, let your decision be an electric coffee urn. Every housewife knows the convenience and serviceability of such a gift, which cooks just fast enough for the percolating process to extract the rich flavor from the coffee bean, resulting in that so delicious beverage.

Reversible Electric Toaster

A thoughtful gift, whether it be for mother or wife, would be that of a reversible Electric Toaster, so that "she" might then sit down in peace to eat breakfast with the rest of the family, and not bother rushing to the kitchen between bites to see whether the toast is burning. An added convenience has been incorporated in this popular utensil, whereby simply pushing a little lever the toast is turned, untouched by the hand.





An Electric Sewing Machine Motor

For the busy woman of the home, who at the same time is industrious and wishes to make the allowance go as far as possible by doing her own sewing, finds an Electric Motor most convenient, in addition to saving money, time and energy.

PITY THE POOR OLD B. B. MAGNATES!

By HENRY L. FARRELL
United Press Sports Editor

NEW YORK, Dec. 15.—After their usual session of gas and oratory, the major league club owners can dig back in for the rest of the season and tune their ears for the music of the 1923 turnstile.

The magnates take themselves and their heavy sessions and conferences very seriously, and it's well they do. Very few others are interested. As long as they leave the game alone they can't damage it very much.

Charles Ebbets, owner of the Brooklyn ball club, is to sail for Europe shortly and he won't be back until it is time to go to Florida for the late winter season. Tough life! Ebbets says the ball players are being paid so much money that the club owners cannot profit.

The only ball players away from home soil that can be recalled offhand are the major leaguers touring the Orient and the Japanese government is paying their expenses.

Because of some dispute over the European middleweight and bantamweight championships, the British Board of Boxing Control has withdrawn from the International Boxing Union.

France resented the withdrawal on the grounds that even with the support of the United States the union could not function without the British.

America's entry into the union could not help the international body, according to one of the London papers, which added: "The United States cannot govern boxing in her own land. How could she then be expected to introduce order and harmony into the continental sphere?"

* * * * * * *

While the United States might not be able to produce harmony in Europe, yet it's a cinch that Uncle Sam could produce some order in any disputes about championships. All the trusty Uncle would have to do would be to send some good boy over and let him knock out both of the debaters and restore order.

DASHING BARON WINS DOWAGERS' HEARTS

Then They Find He Is Barren, But Only of Title to Anything

PARIS, Dec. 15. — Fashionable Paris and more fashionable Nice society has been duped again—the tall, slender, aristocratic Baron de Paxon, the catch of the 1922-23 marriage mart, the nephew of former Premier Viviani, is in the Paris jail, charged with fraud. The Paris police announce that he belongs there; he is not the Baron de Paxon at all, but Marcel Teulier, not related to Premier Viviani.

It is not the legendary American mother eternally seeking titled sons-in-law who is weeping in indignation this morning, but a whole series of French dowagers, each of whom has fancied that she had found in the dashing spendthrift "baron," with all his political influence, the proper husband for her daughter.

As the alleged nephew of Viviani, Baron de Paxon had offered his political protection to many big French business men. Political protection is a marketable commodity in France. The price comes high, and Paxon was well paid. At the same time that he did business with the fathers he courted the marriageable daughters.

"My poor young master!" wept the fake baron's valet, in a luxurious suite of rooms at an expensive Paris hotel. He was sorting the "baron's" silk pajamas—pajamas the "baron" will no longer need. "My poor young master, his pride was his downfall! Had he only taken the money he received and put it into six per cent bonds we would both have been fixed for life.

"But he became ambitious to become what he pretended to be—a political power. Often I've heard him walking up and down his room, talking to himself.

"'Quite right, Poincare, old fellow!' he'd say. 'You are quite right. I don't like to give you advice, but I think that you and I should go together and talk it over with Millerand. Millerand's a good scout—he agrees with me!'"

The hotel has seized the pajamas; the valet is seeking a new job; the dowagers are weeping, and the young, aristocratic "baron" is pacing a six-foot cell, delivering a monologue to a supposed Poincare beyond the bars.

CHRISTMAS SEAL SALES CAMPAIGN IS RUSHED

With little more than a week to go, the tuberculosis Christmas seal sale committee, under the chairmanship of Dr. Jessie Russell, is making every effort to push this campaign to a successful close before the last holiday rush.

Unusual interest has been aroused in seal sales, due no doubt to the establishment by the county health department during the past year of child hygiene programs, health centers, nutrition classes and other prevention work throughout Los Angeles county.

Seventy-five per cent of the proceeds of the sale of these little seals will be used by the county health department in furthering their activities along these lines. It is a work which should have the support of every citizen who believes in raising the health standards of his community. The county committee, of which Dr. J. L. Pomeroy is chairman, wishes to thank the people of Glendale for the splendid co-operation already given, but desires to say that the campaign is still on, and contributions to this cause may be made through the local chairman.

WOMEN'S UNION MEETS IN ALL DAY SESSION

The Women's Union of the First Baptist Church met in all day session Thursday. After devoting the forenoon to white cross sewing a bountiful luncheon was served by District No. 3 of which Mrs. Detweiler is chairman. At 2 o'clock the meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. E. E. Ford, and a solo was sung by Mrs. Park Arnold, "The Birthday of the King," Mrs. Wannacott serving as her accompanist.

The speaker of the day was Mrs. Graham from Pasadena, a returned missionary from a district near Bombay where she and her husband have been working for 24 years. She had many interesting things to say of conditions there.

The most touching feature of the afternoon's program was a pianologue by Mesdames Ray Bentley, and Roger Bentley. Mrs. Ray Bentley was the pianiste, her sister-in-law with her baby daughter, Barbara Anne, reading "The Mother's Prayer."

The attendance was excellent at all the sessions.

THE REAL OFFENSE

Mr. Fussbody—"I saw your husband wearing my lavender silk socks."

The Laudress—"That's too bad. He musta mistook 'em for his'n."

Mr. Fussbody—"That's not the point. At the same time he was wearin' a cerise necktie—a most shocking combination."

The only way by which some men can save money is by breaking into jail.

GERMANY'S FIRST FASHION CREATIONS SINCE WAR ARE ELABORATE AND LUXURIOUS MODELS

German designers are angling for the American dollar as an aid to stiffening up the wobbly mark. At the left is attractive bait in the form of an evening wrap of fawn colored velvet, with collar and cuffs of silver fox. The becoming three-piece suit is embroidered at the sides with braid of silver and gold. Silver fox is used again for this costume, collar, cuffs and edging of the coat being of that fur.

HOME NURSING and HEALTH HINTS

CONCERNING THE BOTTLE BABY

There was once a young mother who became hysterical when the nurse left and she was confronted with the problem of preparing feedings for her infant son, who was a "bottle baby."

"It's all so complicated," she wailed, sitting down at the table and gazing at the array of bottles and utensils, helplessly. "I don't even know the names of the things, much less what to do with them. I wish I had paid attention when the nurse tried to explain about it. I just thought you mixed the milk and the barley water and the sugar or milk and put them in the bottle and gave it to the baby." She mopped tears from her pretty face. Her mother, a calm woman of some sixty odd years, adjusted her gold pincers and surveyed the array of bottles, corks, funnels, spoons, thermometers, and packages calmly.

"I am due at a morning musicale," she said. "But as there is every prospect of a morning musicale in this apartment if that brand new baby does not get his feedings on time, I rather think I shall delve into the mysteries of this milk modification myself. Only I'll get an expert to give me a demonstration first."

Being a thoroughly modern woman the grandmother summoned a nurse and received instructions in the preparation of modified milk.

The nurse had a written food formula to follow.

She had, also, the required number of sterilized bottles and the equipment necessary for the modification of milk.

Taking the milk bottle from the ice box, she washed the top with boiled water and removed the paper cap with a sterilized fork.

Into the glass graduate she poured the amount of milk required for the day's feedings (twenty-four hours.)

The milk was then put into a two-quart pitcher, which had been boiled.

The required amount of cold boiled water was measured into the glass graduate and added to the milk in the pitcher.

The sugar and lime water were measured, added to the milk and water, and the mixture stirred well with a sterilized spoon.

Taking as many feeding bottles as there were feedings, the nurse filled them with exactly the prescribed amount and stoppered them with pledgets of sterile cotton.

She then proceeded to pasteurize the feedings.

Home pasteurization may be conveniently done if this method is followed:

Put four quarts of water in a kettle on the stove and allow it to boil hard. Remove the kettle from the stove and allow it to stand on the table for ten minutes, uncovered.

Put the filled bottle, loosely corked, in the kettle. First place a folded towel in the bottom of the kettle, and cover the kettle for half an hour. At the end of this time, remove the bottles, cool them rapidly under running water, and put in the ice box. Wire racks made purposely to hold baby bottles may be purchased at a nominal sum. The feedings, carefully placed in this wire rack, should be put on the ice until needed.

GADSKI EXCLUSION IS APPROVED BY WAR MOTHERS

At its regular meeting Wednesday, the Lester Meyer chapter of War Mothers of this city adopted the following resolution and instructed the corresponding secretary to broadcast the same to the leading newspapers of Los Angeles county.

"We, the Lester Meyer Chapter of War Mothers, commend ex-service men for not allowing Johanna Gadski to sing in Los Angeles. It is right that they should have something to say about such things."

LONDON SOCIETY WEARS WOMEN OUT AT 20, HE SAYS

LONDON, Dec. 15.—"Worn out at twenty," was the phrase applied to the modern society girl by Dr. Agnes Savill, eminent woman doctor, in a striking lecture before the London Institute of Hygiene.

"The society girl nowadays dispenses with a chaperon," she said, "and even if she retains the old standards her mind is becoming poisoned by the hectic life that she leads, her cigarettes, whiskies and sodas, and unhealthful meals. When she marries her standard of relationship with her husband and children will not be a high one.

"I have seen some of these girls," Dr. Savill continued. "After a few years of society life they age by ten years, and already at the age of twenty they are as worn out and nerve tired as if they were forty.

"I think that the cocktail habit among young girls is a serious danger. It is lamentable that a girl of twenty cannot take a meal without first having a cocktail because she fears indigestion."

Dr. Savill blames parents for what she describes as "this physical degeneration," asserting that only they can remedy it.

POLICE COURT, A ONE-FAMILY AFFAIR, TERROR TO SPEEDERS

Judge Hugh J. Crawford of Los Angeles recently disposed of the services of the clerk of the court and installed in his place his daughter, Mrs. C. Holmes. He says she is the best court clerk he has ever had. Judge Crawford has been one of the leaders in the Los Angeles crusade against auto speeders. Heavy fines and prison terms are being inflicted. When the judge is lenient enough to let the culprit off with a fine he walks over to the daughter's desk and pays.

SECRET OF DANCE IS HAPPY FEET SAYS SHE

CHICAGO, Dec. 15. — "Happy, contented feet," are the secret of beautiful dancing, according to Madame Anna Ludmila, 18 years old, premier danseuse of the Chicago Civic Opera association, which has just opened the season here.

"The one thing a dancer must forget is her feet," said Madame Ludmila. "This is possible only when they are comfortably, correctly and beautifully clothed as well as perfectly trained. Only when a dancer's feet are happy and contented is good dancing possible on or off the stage."

ANTI-RAT DRIVE OFF IN GEORGIA

ATLANTA, Ga., Dec. 15.—Even though blood poisoning, resulting from the bite of a rat on the left eye, was declared on a death certificate to have caused the death of a month-old negro baby, Secretary B. S. Barker, of the Atlanta chamber of commerce, has not made any noticeable progress in his "Rat-killing week" idea. Governor Hardwick refused to issue a proclamation setting aside a special week for killing rats, and Mayor Key, of Atlanta, also declined to proclaim a week for the extermination of rats.

MARCEL

He is the inventor of the Marcel wave, is still living, is seventy years old, and is enjoying health and financial comfort on his estate in France.

He was born in 1852 at Chavigny. At the age of twelve he was apprenticed as a stonemason, but was later sent to learn the barber's trade.

At sixteen he went to Paris to work. He was dismissed from the first place because of awkwardness. Then he set up for himself in a low quarter of the city in order to earn enough to support himself, his wife, and his mother.

He practised dressing his mother's hair, and this was noticed by girls who wanted him to try the same style on them. Then one day he worked it out successfully for one of his female customers. It was called by the neighbors caniche (poodle fashion).

A year passed during which time there was no development of the Marrel wave, until one day a none-too-prominent actress appeared in public with the startling coiffure. Others followed, but he had to do much of his work for nothing.

In 1882 business picked up, and he was being remunerated for his services, so he opened a shop in the heart of Paris.

Success then came with a rush. His shop was the busiest place in the world. Fashionable ladies adopted the new style, the stage adopted it, and it became the rage.

When a self-made man makes a fool of himself he robs some woman of the job.

CARAMEL VELVET

Caramel velvet is used for a long slim frock trimmed with wide bands of skunk.

Father for once was stern. It was the fifth time that week that little Winnie had helped herself to far more food than she could eat, and left the rest piled up on her plate.

"Winnie, next time you must either eat it all up or be spanked," said father, severely.

A day or two later chocolate pudding made its appearance on the table. Winnie took a large spoon and an extra large helping. After a few minutes her father heard a plaintive voice:

"Daddy, would you rather be spanked or bust?"

PLANTERS HOTEL OF ST. LOUIS TO CLOSE DOORS

Old Landmark Yields to Bustling Building of Valley

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Dec. 15.—A land mark of the old southwest is about to be swallowed up in the rush of a new and bustling Mississippi valley.

The Planters' Hotel, rendezvous of wealthy travelers of a century past, will close its doors January 1, after 105 years' of hospitality and good cheer.

The stately old hostelry—the oldest in St. Louis and one of the most famous in the middle west, will be stripped of its expensive furnishings and is to be remodeled as a modern office building.

Rich memories of 19th century romances, of life on the great western plains and in the cotton fields along the Mississippi, will be lost to St. Louis with the passing of the Planters.

Its roof has sheltered thousands of conventions. Councils of war have been held in its chambers. Down its long, grey corridors have walked the rugged pioneers of the plains. The "landed gentlemen" of the south have come with their families on long steamer trips up the Mississippi to enjoy its hospitality.

The pages of its register contain the names of presidents, princes, generals, diplomats, authors, practically all the great musicians of the last century, as well as countless numbers of just "people," who have been attracted to the historic old inn.

One of its first distinguished guests was Charles Dickens, who afterward wrote in his notes of America: "We went to a large hotel called the Planters. It is an excellent house and the proprietors have the most beautiful notions of providing the creature comfort. Dining with my wife in our room one day, I counted 14 dishes on the table at once."

But business men have decreed the old hotel must give way to offices and shops. New Year's Eve will witness its last gay dinner—the last name will be written on its register.

The Planters' has served its time.

GERMANS GO TO AFRICA

BERLIN (By Mail)—Germany is turning to Portuguese Africa for an outlet for her surplus population.

Germany's emigration is very small, however, owing to the great opportunity for work in Germany and because of the great cost in marks for travel outside the country itself.

When a girl refuses to flirt, it's a sign that she is really and truly in love with one man.

LITTLE TALKS ON THRIFT

By S. W. STRAUS, President American Society for Thrift.

IN reviewing the year which is now fast slipping from our grasp we can rest assured that if we have gone through it without practicing thrift, it can be set down as a wasted period in our lives. For thrift is at the foundation of all substantial success in life.

S. W. STRAUS

It is a secondary matter whether one's income during this period has been greater or smaller than before. If one has earned more than previously and has nothing to show for it, his success is not equal to that of the person who has not been able to earn so much, but who has been practicing thrift, and therefore has something to show for the year's accomplishments.

Very few persons are purposely or willfully thriftless. Lack of thrift is in most cases the result of procrastination. Many of those who are not thrifty feel that they have not reached a place where circumstances or personal convenience will permit of their saving money.

But do not allow yourself to be deceived by any such false reasoning. Generally speaking, it is just as easy to begin thrift one time as another. It may seem to you that in the future you will be better fixed for saving money, but as you go on, month after month, you will find that even though conditions may apparently improve with you the temptation to waste your financial resources is just as strong.

The coming New Year will be a most auspicious time for the beginning of a thrifty life. Do not procrastinate, no matter what your circumstances in life may be.

Make the start.

Resolve that when this period comes around next year you will have something to show for your time and labor. These end-of-the-year days constitute an opportune time for the start in thrift practices.

FROM THE DEAD LETTER OFFICE
THE RESULT OF CARELESS WRAPPING AND ADDRESSING
Ass't Postmaster Morgan in Hospital Yard From the Dead Letter Office

Every year, at Christmas time, the postoffice system is swamped with the flow of Yuletide presents. Millions of packages are mailed, some so carelessly they never reach their destination, or, if they do, with all their contents ruined. This year the postoffice slogan is "BUY EARLY AND MAIL EARLY!" Postmaster Edward M. Morgan is shown in New York examining some of the poorly-wrapped parcels that will never reach their destination.

THE DOCTOR'S PRACTICE

By H. ADDINGTON BRUCE

Author of "The Riddle of Personality," "Handicaps of Childhood," Etc.

(Copyright, 1922, by The Associated Newspapers.)

To most people it will come as a surprise to be told that patients suffering from minor mental maladies form the bulk of the practice of the average physician. Such is the statement unhesitatingly made in the course of a recent address by the president of the psychiatric section of the Royal Society of Medicine, Dr. E. F. Buzzard.

The natural inclination among laymen must be to receive it with incredulity. Many a physician, at first thought, will share their incredulity.

Running rapidly through his case notes the physician finds a constant recurrence of maladies and symptoms conspicuously physical in character. Acute and chronic infections, headaches and backaches, insomnias and dyspepsias, exhaustions and semi-exhaustions—these are the things with which he most commonly is called upon to deal.

But let him bethink himself.

How often he must recollect that failure attended his best efforts unless and until he effected changes in his patients' attitude to life in general and to their own discomforts in particular. Again and again, he will recall, wrong thinking of some sort, veritably constituting a minor mental malady, played at least a contributory part in the causing of the bodily malady that challenged his skill.

Has he always been able to effect the needed mental reorganization? He will recall many an occasion when he has sincerely regretted that his professional schooling did not include some training in psychological medicine. For lack of it he has had to fall back on commonsense methods of persuasion and appeal, by no means uniformly successful.

And, as suggested by Dr. Buzzard in his presidential address, the handicap thus imposed on the average physician of today seems likely to be imposed on the average physician of tomorrow.

For, far too generally, medical schools still fail to stress the mental factor in disease and to equip their students for coping with it effectively. Only here and there are courses in medical psychology given, and then usually for the benefit of those who expect to specialize in the more obvious mental troubles.

Not until such courses are universally given in medical schools will the practice of medicine be as satisfactory as it ought to be to doctors and patients alike. The growing distrust of physicians—as evinced by the increasing popularity of "irregular" healing methods—must largely be attributed to the prevalent failure of medical school instructors to take into account in their work as instructors the relationship of the mind to disorders of the body.

REPRESENTATIVE'S WIDOW WILL BECOME CANDIDATE TO SUCCEED HIM IN CONGRESS

Mrs. John I. Nolan of San Francisco has announced her intention to become a candidate in the Fifth California Congressional district for the seat made vacant by the death of her husband. Mrs. Nolan acted as committee clerk for him. She is shown here with her little daughter.

Postmaster General Says Wise Things of Christmas Mailing

Here is the Postmaster General's word to those doing the Christmas mailing. Hubert Work says to observe the following rules, and packages will reach their destinations intact:

1—Wrap with tough paper.
2—Tie with stout cord.
—Write or print a plain address with ink.
4—Attach address to article inside the wrapper.
—Place return address in upper left corner.
6—Inclose articles liable to breakage in corrugated paper box and pack in excelsior, or similar substance.
7—If contents are perishable or fragile, mark package conspicuously or have clerk do it for you.
8—Think of the miles it must travel rubbing up against other parcels, handled and rehandled.
9—When ready to mail, give it the "once over."—Address, return address, stamps, wrapper, packing.
10—Mail it early.
11—Insure it.

In weighing the importance of these injunctions, it appears that giving the parcel the "once over" would be the most important and at once conducive to successfully sending a package, for in haste, any one of the injunctions might be forgoten, but could probably be remembered in looking the package over just before mailing it.

UNCLE SAM PAYS HIS OBLIGATION

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15.—Owners of war savings stamps of the 1918 series will become eligible January 1 to "cash in" their stamps or certificates at full value, $5.

Treasury officials are preparing to wipe $625,000,000 from the debit side of Uncle Sam's ledger, or transfer a part of it to another account.

NEW COMET FOUND

HAMBURG, (By mail).—Another comet has been discovered. Dr. W. Baade of the Hamburg observatory announces his find declaring the comet may be seen in western skies headed in a southeastern direction. This makes the third comet of the year, the other two having been discovered in South Africa—the Comet Beid on January 24, and the Comet Skjellerup on May 17.

Lives of some statesmen reminds us that it is sometimes better to be obscure.

GOBS STAGE TWO MONTHS PARTY

RIO De JANEIRO, (By mail).—The visit of the United States steamship Nevada to Rio will go down in the annals of the American colony as the gayest and most successful two months' party ever held on the shores of Guanabra bay.

The big warship arrived on September 5 and departed November 16. The time in Rio was one continucus party—with the gobs and marine detachment occupying the center of the stage all the time.

And the navy showed its appreciation by coming through handsomely every time it had a chance.

"Nevada Day" at the International Exposition, arranged by the Commissioner General of the United States, drew the biggest crowd of paid admissions of any one day since the show opened.

DAYTONA PLANS AIR GLIDING MEET

DAYTONA, Fla., Dec. 15.—The first international air gliding and soaring meet to be held in America will take place the latter part of January at Daytona Beach and Seabreeze.

This announcement was made by the Daytona chamber of commerce following an invitation to the Aero Science club of America to hold the meet here, which has been accepted. With the invitation to the club to hold the meet here, the chamber of commerce also made an offer of $1000 in prize money.

Stanley Yale Beach, secretary of the club, announced that Orville Wright and Glenn H. Curtis would co-operate in the event and that at least 100 flyers would compete.

Glenn Curtis recently successfully rose in a glider from the water.

When Hentzen, a young German student, made a continuous flight of 3 hours and 10 minutes in a motorless plane, authorities on aviation began to realize that something in the way of a revolution had dawned in the science of airplane construction and control. For a number of years the attention of airplane manufacturers and operation has centered largely on the motor, relying on its power to offset any lack in plane construction and pilotage.

The Germans have added to their original success in gliding flight by building planes equipped with two and six-horsepower motors that have made the flight over a specified route of 20 miles or more and more recently have constructed a glider that rose from the water and flew for several minutes without being towed.

The importance that has been attached to these feats in motorless plane construction and operation is seen in the fact that last August an international gliding and soaring competition was held in France in which representatives of several nations participated. This meet was followed by a $5,000 prize competition held in England in October during which Captain Raynam, an English aviator, flew for 1 hour and 53 minutes in a motorless plane. The London Daily Mail announced a $25,000 contest for next year.

DeWitt V. Hutchings, of Riverside, California, has offered a prize of $1000 to the glider pilot breaking the record of 3 hours and 10 minutes set by Hentzen.

The suggestion to hold the glider meet here, which first came from Stanley Yale Beach, was placed before the Chamber of Commerce by the Daytona Daily News.

In its action Daytona has attracted the attention of those interested in this sport—scientists and thousands of tourists who will attend the exhibition.

Considering the great importance attached by experts to the science and sport of gliding and soaring in motorless planes and the great interest shown all over the world by this unexpected development in aviation, the people of this sectoin and those from the north who spend their winters here are highly pleased with the prospect of the meet.

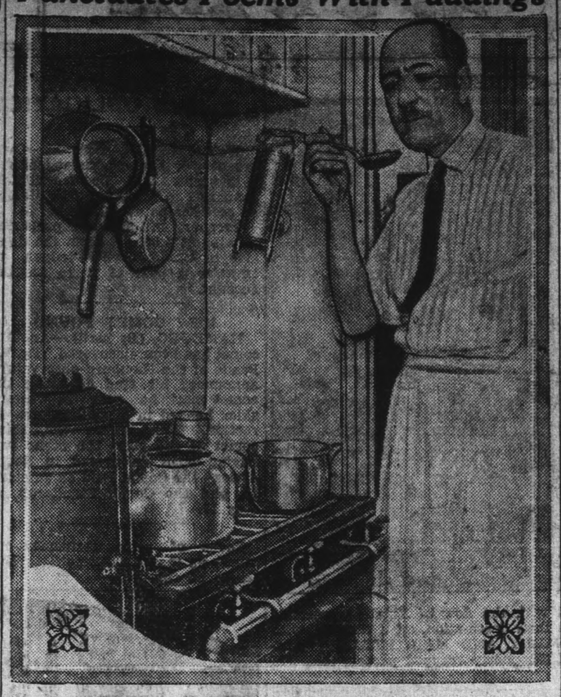
Preparations on a broad scale are under way for the meet. Some of the planes specially constructed by the Aero club are already on the grounds and are undergoing test flights.

WORK HARD; GET ANYTHING

"Start early and work hard, and I believe you can get just about anything you want," is the advice given students of the State College of Washington in an address by President S. C. Barrett of the National Farmers' Union.

"The world's all right! Opportunities are greater than ever before in the history of the world. There are hundreds of positions today unfilled; nobody to fill them. The best thing to do is to study yourselves to death. It won't hurt you, and it will come in handy when you are old."

Punctuates Poems With Puddings



This is Stephen Benet's recipe: Line the edge of a pudding dish with pastry and spread two tablespoons of jam in the bottom. Blend four tablespoons of vegetable shortening with half a cup of flour. The vegetable shortening helps to make the pudding light and digestible, since vegetable fat is more easily absorbed by the body. When the mixture is quite smooth, stir in one cup of milk, four tablespoons sugar, one teaspoon of vanilla extract, a half teaspoon of salt and the yolks of two eggs. Stir these well together, and pour over the jam. Bake for thirty minutes. Then beat up the whites of the eggs to a stiff froth, add one tablespoon of sugar, and arrange roughly on top. Place the pudding again in the oven and leave it there until the beaten up whites are lightly browned.

M'ADOO BOOM GETS UNDER WAY AT WASHINGTON

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—Washington politicians say that a smoothly-oiled plan of campaign to make William G. McAdoo the Democratic presidential nominee in 1924 is already under way.

The campaign in favor of the former secretary of the treasury and son-in-law of ex-President Wilson, really began some months ago, but now that the elections are over, new and more extensive plans are being drafted and the McAdoo boom is being put underway in earnest.

The McAdoo backers in the democratic party are more confident than ever since the elections. They believe that the defeat of Senator Pomerene in Ohio put McAdoo's strongest potential opponent for the democratic nomination effectually out of the running.

Believing they have the inside track now, the McAdoo supporters are out to keep the jump on the other factions within the democratic party.

The McAdoo men claim they have no fear of Al Smith of New York who looms as the Tammany Hall presidential candidate in 1924.

His split with Tammany Hall during the Wilson administration was believed to be one of the chief reasons McAdoo moved last year from New York to new political quarters in California.

Some of the McAdoo leaders, it is understood, feel that Woodrow Wilson can be induced to throw his support to his son-in-law in the next democratic national convention. It will not be a surprise if Bernard Baruch, Josephus Daniels, Daniel C. Roper, Robert Woolley, Huston Thompson or some other McAdoo emissary makes a call at the former president's home on S Street shortly to get Mr. Wilson's attitude.

A woman can get even with a man by marrying him, or by refusing to do so.

Forty-five Members Attend Event at Sunset Clubhouse

The Kiwanians of Burbank enjoyed a lively luncheon at the Sunset Country club Wednesday, there being 45 members present. In absence of Chairman Harry B. Watson, President H. W. Lewis acted as temporary chairman. This is the first meeting of the club under the charter.

Talks by members on civic impressions were brought up for discussion. The luch served by the Country club received high commendation by the members.

VITAMINS IN MILK

"From a lack of vitamins, the chemically unknown substances in food which are necessary to normal growth and development, we get under-development and illness which may become serious or fatal if the deficiency continues too long," says Miss Leila W. Hunt, head of the foods and nutrition work at the State College of Washington.

"Milk contains these vitamins, provided the cow's food has them in sufficient amounts and that they are not destroyed by some process of commercialization.

"Vitamin 'A' is a fat soluble, sometimes called anti-ricketic because its absence in the diet is believed to cause rickets and a peculiar condition of the eyes called xerophthalmia.

"Vitamin 'B' is a water soluble sometimes called antineuritic. Its presence in the diet in sufficient amount prevents polyneuritis or beri-beri.

"Vitamin 'C' is another water soluble sometimes called anti-scorbutic. If there is sufficient quantity of it in the diet it prevents scurvy.

Virtue is its own reward, while vice gets all the publicity.

CINDERELLA DISROBES

BY JOHN BRECK

A strange tranquility enthralls the world with the coming of the first white frost—a silence of suspense for so long as the crystal sparkle transmutes the earth into a place of wonder. What wild winds skirl above the misty swathings which veil the tree tops, we wot not of. We only know we find our Cinderella of a world enchanting in her fairy grandeur. She wears a mantle of silver, flashing jewels on every twig-tip, and glass slippers on every grass blade.

But for how long? Midnight is not the fatal hour of her disrobing. At dawn the matter-of-fact sun and the work-a-day wind begin clearing away the magic which properly belongs only to moonlight. Slowly the mist is lifted, and a faint light tarnishes its eastern hem. Day gropes for this beauty with its disillusioning ray. The silver dims; the diamond frostwork turns to pearly dew. And the hardy robins, swishing through the wet, mark the shimmering blue-green surface of the lawn with emerald in little arrow-shaped splashes like the trail of a skipping pebble. A towhee adds a spot of brown in a bit of underbrush embroidery, where he turns back the moist leaves which the frost has patted smooth over the heads of the earthworms. A flicker falls like a spark from his unseen perch in the top of an oak. The anreate flame of his wings is quenched as he alights on a winterberry bush, though his red crown still smoulders.

But this hour properly belongs to the sparrows. To hear their cheerful voice, you would never suspect their little feet had clung to chilly perches all the night before. A whitethroat swings from a head of yarrow. His ruddy tinge gives him the effect of being blowzed all over with the cold. A flock of tree sparrows, with a little black bull's eye in the exact center of each breast, drawl their eternal question as to whether or not they are "too la-ate?" The little song sparrow tilts restlessly about, combing his wings with his claws, fly fashion, narrowing his tail into proper singing position, and putting up his chin as if he were all ready to begin. Then his figure changes. He squats back on his perch and spreads his little feather quilt out over his toes again. He does it a dozen times before a last tail of mist, nursed by the moisture of the shade, goes swirling up through a grove of pines, and a blaze of iridescence makes it clear that the sun really intends to be on the job. He announces his discovery, leaning forward to give it greater emphasis. Sing? That little rascal would sing in the middle of a snow flurry if a shaft of sun shot through it.

As if they were waiting for him to give them their cue, every bird that has a call left in him begins to twitter. Do they not know that brief moment of glitter marks Cinderella's final dissolution? Or do they? And are they merely rejoicing to find the seeds as mellow as after any dull familiar rain? Birds are so utilitarian.

POISON LETTERS STIR AN EMPIRE

LONDON, Dec. 14.—Scotland Yard has set out to find the hand behind the poisoned pen whose acid strokes, during two years of scurrilous anonymous letters, have beaten into the hearts of hundreds of residents of the seaside town of Littlehampton, near Brighton.

Husbands and wives have been estranged, daughters cast out, homes broken up, lives wrecked; suicides and murders even have been caused by or attributed to the foul charges with which the letters are filled.

Two innocent women have been prosecuted as authors of them.

Local and county police have sought since 1920 for the author of the letters. Now some of the best detectives in the famous Scotland Yard force have been assigned to the case.

All the evidence they have to work upon is:

1—Bundles of hundreds of somewhat shakily printed letters, making terrible charges against bankers, clergymen, businessmen, wives, sweethearts, even mothers and children; some of them sent as far as India to relatives and friends of the victims.

2—The knowledge that none of the persons ever suspected could have written the letters.

3—The probability that a woman is the author; probably someone whose life was soured through sorrow or secret sins.

Scotland Yard was called in following a revival of the letters.

The letters are as prolific as their charges are varied—immorality, unfaithfulness, dishonesty, deceit, perversion, disease.

It was two years ago that the plague was visited upon Littlehampton. From a particular neighborhood the letters spread over the little town of 8,500 people, then throughout the country. The letters circulated to London and finally to the outposts of the British Empire—wherever a husband or sweetheart, relative or friends of the victim could be reached.

All the letters show an intimate knowledge of affairs, public and private, in the town. Some of the letters are easily proved untrue; others have done the work their authors intended for them.

A local housewife was prosecuted for sending the letters and sentenced to ten days' imprisonment. Soon after her release, the letters began to carry their foul messages throughout the empire. The woman was arrested again, convicted, and sentenced to a year's imprisonment. While she was serving her sentence they began again. Finally it was found that the woman in jail could not have written them. She was released and compensated by the British government. Her accuser at her two trials, a spinster, was arrested. She was tried, but by the judge's order the jury acquitted her, because of the weakness of the case for the prosecution.

The plague lay dormant for a time. Now it is again epidemic.

Pancake Eating Contest a Strenuous One But Battlers Survive Ordeal.

The Pancake Eating Contest.

New York Although threatened for a time with a total collapse of their digestive systems the winner and the runner-up in the pancake eating contest for the championship of the United States Lines fleet have survived the strenuous ordeal and are pronounced out of danger. The finals in the unique competition took place aboard the steamship "President Garfield" and was the concluding contest of a series of elimination matches.

The pancake eating contest began a month ago following the boast of the "George Washington's" chief stewart that they had a man who could eat more pancakes than any other man in the fleet. The boast was made to the chief stewart of the "President Harding," who accepted the challenge on behalf of one of the men of his crew. Ship after ship fell in line, each seeking to outdo the other.

The contest finally dwindled down to the eating representatives of the "President Garfield" and the "President Roosevelt." The finals were held aboard the latter steamship and two chefs were kept busy turning out pancakes for the contestants.

It was a nip and tuck race until each man had disposed of sixty and the eater of the "President Roosevelt" began to forge ahead. Mid great cheering from the onlookers this eater won a lead of five pancakes over his adversary. Then it was that the "President Garfield" eater with a superhuman effort began to engulf pancakes in a startling manner.

In vain the "President Roosevelt" representative sought to maintain his lead. One by one the "President Garfield" pancakist increased his score until the contestants were even up with seventy-one to their credit. The "President Garfield" representative continued his efforts and went into the lead and when the "President Roosevelt" eater had scored seventy-four he threw up his hands and exclaimed "enough." Just to show that he was still in the ring the leader devoured two more pancakes and triumphantly assumed the championship with seventy-seven pancakes to his credit.

FUNNY THINGS IN BASEBALL RECORDS

By HENRY L. FARRELL
United Press Sports Editor

NEW YORK, Dec. 15.—Only four pitchers in the National League pitched better ball last season than Senor Adolfo Luque, the Cuban hurler of the Cincinnati Reds. At the same time only three pitchers pitched worse ball.

Sounds rather contradictory, but it remains a fact under the system of giving the pitchers a double rating.

In average runs allowed per game, which is perhaps the real way to judge ability, Luque was fifth with an average of only 3.31 runs a game.

But the Senor won only 13 games and lost 23, which from the old games won and lost system made him twenty-third on the list with an average of .361.

Hard luck, it might be called, for the Senor. He is one of several fine pitchers who have never taken the spotlight because no teams seem able to get runs for them.

Johnny Couch is a good example of the contrary. Couch is a young teammate of Luque's. He won 16 out of 25 games and finished third on the list. But he was nineteenth on the list in allowing runs.

* * * * * * *

Ted Kid Lewis, European middleweight champion, successfully defended his title recently by winning a twenty-ruond decision from Roland Todd.

"Except for Lewis' holding and carelessness once or twice with his head, it was a clean, hard-fought contest," one of the London papers said in discussing the bout. "The result was a sore disappointment to Todd, but it might easily have gone the other way if Todd knew how to make more use of himself."

* * * * * * *

Faint echoes are still heard of those brave words that floated up from the southern training camps last spring:

"Arm? Boy, you never saw such a arm! Thirty games for me next year, thirty games!"

Eppa Rixey, the Cincinnati Red hurler, was the only National League pitcher to win twenty-five games and Lefty Cooper of the Pirates and Dutch Reuther of the Robins were the only others to get above the twenty mark.

RARE OLD COOKBOOK

A quaint old English cook book, nearly 200 years old, has just been given the library of the State College of Washington, an an interesting addition to the home economics texts, by a member of the faculty who each year gives away some valued possession on Thanksgiving.

The book is a copy of Howard's Cookery, printed in London, "at the Rose, over against the North door of St. Paul's" in 1733, and is bound in mellow old brown leather, hand tooled, and in good preservation. On the first page, in faded ink, is inscribed "Amelia's Book," and "Mr. Howard, Oxfordale Batsman"—possibly showing where Amelia's interest was centered.

There are "five hundred new receipts in cookery" in the volume, including "hare pye, to ragoo woodcocks, to make almond puddings in guts, turnip soop, syllabub, pottage, pickled samphire, sugar amlet, and to souse a conger eel." Many of the recipes for the making of gooseberry wine, July-flower wine, and cowslip wine and various of the recipes call for a "a pint of the best Rhenish wine."

Rules are given for the pickling of all sorts of things—broom-buds, mushrooms, artichoke - bottoms, Ashen-keys, hips, barberries and thistle stalks.

Here is one that does not require a vast amount of labor that many of them do (poor other-day housewives, beating for hours with a wooden spoon.); "To candy all sorts of flowers in their own natural colours take your flowers with the stalks on and wash them over with rosewater wherein gum-arabick is dissolved ;sift fine sugar over them, and set them to dry on a sieve in an oven, and they will be very nice."

At the back of the book is "a bill of fare for every month in the year" (first and second course), showing how largely folk lived on a meat diet a century or two ago.

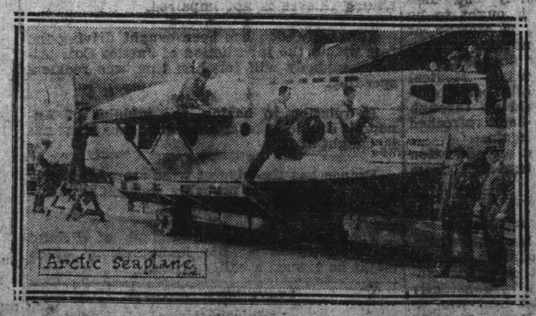
SEAPLANE BEING BUILT FOR ARCTIC HUNTING



Arctic Seaplane

Seven nationally known American business men plan to fly to the Arctic next summer, in 72 flying hours, in quest of the walrus and polar bear. The trip, by boat and sled, would take weeks. This photograph shows the seaplane in which they will travel. It is being built at Keyport, N. J. I. M. Uppercu, president of the Cadillac Motor Car company, and Charles F. Redden, president of the Aeromarine Airways, Inc., are shown together in front of the plane. They, with H. E. Coffin, H. H. Emmons, J. W. Inches, W. E. Metzger and C. F. Redden, will make the trip.

THE INDIFFERENT DRIVER

A driver at Sacramento failed to stop after he had struck and wrecked another automobile, caused one death and injuries to several persons. The dispatch that sends the information that he is going to San Quentin to serve a term of from one to five years, mentions him as an "Indifferent Driver." The characterization will be deemed mild enough. Killing people and not caring about it, possibly goes beyond the state of mind that is regarded as indifference. It is carelessness and brutality. It bespeaks the mentality of the potential assassin.

There are other types of the indifferent driver. The ones who are ready to incur risk may be nothing worse than careless. They are thoughtless. They violate rules of the road, not because they desire to hurt anybody, but on the theory that no matter how selfish they are, and how much they discommode other drivers, these will look out for themselves. When the careless driver's course leads to accident, he may be sorry. It is quite possible that he will be the first to offer aid to the injured. He is not at heart brutal at all. But on the public roads he is a constant peril.

The driver who runs over anybody, and then runs away, is in addition to other undesirable traits, a coward. His act of running away is in itself a felony. It is a wholesome court procedure that sends him to the penitentiary to think it over.

THE SEASON'S RAIN

Weather prophets state that this year will be marked by a record rainfall—a record for abundance, not scarcity. Weather prophets sometimes are right. When half make one prediction, and half the exact opposite, fifty per cent are bound to be correct.

Probably the world pretty generally knows that winter is the wet season of the north Pacific coast. Farther south exactly the reverse is the case. In southern California the rainfall is far less than in the other end of the state, and it is much less there than in the Puget Sound region. In this community it is rare indeed that the rains are torrential. Such are the safeguards against floods now that such a downpour as once might have caused damage, runs off without inflicting injury. Moreover, the water is not wasted as formerly, but restrained and made to have economic value.

As this is written, and not counting the gentle rain descending at the moment, the precipitation for the season has been 4.08 inches. Last year at the corresponding period it had been 1.85 inches. And last season's total was above the average. The difference in rainfall in areas close to each other is remarkable. Pasadena, only a few miles from Los Angeles, but nearer the mountains, receives virtually 33 1-3 more rain than the larger place.

Rains in this section as a rule come in a pleasing and dependable fashion. Perhaps three or four days will be overcast and showery, with hours of constant precipitation, gentle, and penetrating the soil deeply. Then will come a long series of days of blue and unblemished skies, with temperature suave as that of June. All this may be counted among the many reasons why residents believe they have the finest winter climate in the world. They are equally enthusiastic as to the summers.

NOT USED TO FREEDOM

Poland has a new president. His name is Gabriel Narutowicz. When he was inaugurated the occasion was marked by riots that caused some fatalities. The most distressing experience of the executive himself was that of being pelted with snowballs. But he took the oath. It is possible that his administration may move more smoothly than the beginning seems to indicate.

Generations ago Poland was robbed of liberty, and absorbed by larger powers that meant to keep it utterly subjugated and ultimately to efface it. The spirit of Poland survived. There was no period in the bitter experience of the people when they had abandoned the hope of once more having a government of their own. Now they have it, one of the fruits of war, and it is their business to take care of it.

It is not surprising that a nation preserving its cohesion only by the force of its indomitable will, should have developed a type of harshness. Accustomed to the presence of a relentless mastery, surrounded by the spirit of hostility and suspicion, the conditions did not make for spiritual softness. But the Poles are devoted to their country, proud of their long-sought freedom, and when they have become accustomed to it, may make fine use of it.

THE MORBID THRONG

Many people have been amazed, and not a little ashamed, at recent aggregations of the morbid. They have known of courtrooms being crowded to catch a glimpse of a notorious prisoner, or to hear testimony indicating fierce and depraved passions on the part of the accused. They have learned of sympathy's being expended on a guilty and undeserving wretch. The contemplation has not been pleasing. It has led them to wonder how liberal is the sprinkling of morons throughout the population. If it is any comfort, the fact may be cited that other communities are in this respect fully as bad.

In London a man and woman have been found guilty of murder. This is a crime far less common in England than in this country. While the courts there have a habit of convicting and punishing the guilty, the trial of a woman had not occurred for many years. The unwritten law that permits the sulky female to slay the destroyer of her temper has no vogue among British jurists.

The trial of this pair drew a crowd numbered by thousands. The unemployed gathered in line, and then sold their places to the well-to-do. Still there was a difference in the character of the American court-room rabble and that of London. The latter was not present in order to cheer the prisoners, and brought no gifts of flowers. It was there out of mere vulgar curiosity.

As to the relative moral value of the two groups, the psychologist may pass judgment if he thinks it worth while.

MUSSOLINI DISAPPOINTED

The new premier of Italy is said to have gone to London under a wrong impression. He thought he was to enter a free conference. In such a gathering he had supposed that common sense, backed by argument would prevail. What he found was, in the words of a correspondent, that the game was being carried on with loaded dice, and that the reaching of a definite settlement was impossible. It is stated that the conference was a failure, and that adjournment to a future day was merely the effort to keep the truth about it hidden.

Hope that in the relationships of European powers there was to be an element of altruism appears to have nothing left on which to stand. It seems as if each government was looking out for its own interests alone. Perhaps in time of great peril they might unite for common defense, but evidently it would be with the thought in each of preserving its own, and perhaps adding to it.

It is discouraging to the people of the United States to observe Europe adhering to a policy that is unmarked by constructiveness. Europe wants reparations, loans, deferment of payments. It cherishes bitterness where wisdom would suggest the cultivation of friendships. And doing these things, it gives out the impression that it believes America is responsible, and ought to straighten out all the confusion.

THE LIMBLESS BABY

By DR. FRANK CRANE

A girl baby was born the other day in Chicago both armless and legless, a victim of one of Nature's grim moods.

Dr. Frank Crane

The child, with only the slightest suggestion of arms, will never be able to feed itself. Without legs, it will never be able to walk.

Except for its malformations, the child is physically and mentally sound.

Some one told the parents that the child would better be dead. The father and mother, however, protest that their little one shall never want for love and care, and that it shall be given a chance.

The parents are right. Man is a brain, he is not an animal organism. You cannot say that a man HAS a brain. He IS a brain; he has a body.

There is no reason why this child should not enjoy life as much as any one, for enjoyment in every case is a matter of adjusting one's self to one's limitations.

What fields are open to this new pilgrim? She may become the greatest of mathematicians, or of psychologists, or of poets, or of novelists, or of inventors. These careers do not depend on legs and arms.

The other day Mr. C. Lee Cook visited New York. Mr. Cook is a remarkable man and has been called the south's industrial genius. During the construction of New York's subway he was summoned from Louisville, Ky., to solve a certain problem in construction. His creative genius proved of great value to the government in its shipbuilding program during the war.

His mental capacity is far above the ordinary, and his knowledge of history and law surprises even experts in those matters.

His associates claim that had he chosen the legal profession he would have been a fit member for the United States supreme court.

The governor of his home state has offered him the appointment of senator, and he has declined the nomination of mayor.

And the reason why we mention Mr. Cook in this connection is that he has been deprived of the use of his legs since he was one year old, and he is practically without the use of both hands.

THE RIGHT WORD

By W. CURTIS NICHOLSON

THE RIGHT WORD SCHOOL

One feature of "The Right Word School," reviews of the styles of modern writers and the determination of usage, was discussed day before yesterday and illustrated yesterday.

Another feature is the article that will appeal frequently, "The Wrong Righted". Comments on the character of this feature are in order.

When a word or locution or construction is indicted for incorrectness by being placed in the first section under the heading, "The Wrong Word," this allocation is based on the decisions of generally accepted authorities and on the writer's belief that these decisions are supported by usage.

If usage among careful writers seems to refute these decisions and also traditions, "The Right Word" will be guided by authorities and traditions until it can be shown that usage among careful writers warrants endorsing as correct that which has formerly been considered as incorrect. In this matter "The Right Word" will be very conservative, but will be constantly seeking the truth.

In this feature lie and lay, don't, who and whom have been treated somewhat at length. However, more examples are to follow in the future.

This is grammar simplified. Dry and difficult rules will be omitted. You will learn naturally by reading and examining example after example. You will find among these examples one that will solve your particular problem. The examples will not always be composed by the writer; the large majority will be taken from books, magazines and newspapers. The examples will be amply supported by the authority of usage.

"The Wrong Righted" will appear again tomorrow, when the proper use of the possessive before the gerund will be illustrated.

THE LISTENING POST

By James W. Foley

Getting along toward the hilltop of the year.
As travelers upon a journey.
Who have gone up hill and down dale.
Through valley and over mountains.
And are approaching the summit of the trail.

* * *

For in some way the holiday season, as we term it, is the summit of the trail.

The hilltop of the year, as we said back there.

Where we can see the sunset of the year past.
And the sunrise of the year to come.
The end and the beginning.

* * *

Of course, every day we might say is an end.
And every morning a beginning.
Every dusk marks the end of the task laid out for us at the dawn.
And every dawn marks the beginning of the task laid out for the day.
The year is merely a larger division of time.

* * *

But when we are at the hilltop we are disposed to look back over the trail we have come.
And we see where the road has been difficult.
Some pretty stiff climbs.
Where we had to struggle upward.
Not quite certain of the pathway.

* * *

And then there were stony places.
Where the feet were cut and blistered and bruised.
For the ways of life are not all easy.
Some of them are pretty difficult.
And there is desert road as well as flowered pathway.

* * *

Way down back of us is a valley with green fields and flowered vales.
Pleasant enough that was to be sure.
The music of friendly speech and the grasp of friendly hands.
Or the sitting down at a laden table.

* * *

Life has its trials and delights.
Its joys and sorrows.
Its pleasures and pains.
Its struggles and ease.
All a part of the picture.
All to be seen along the trail back of us as we look at it from the end of the year.

* * *

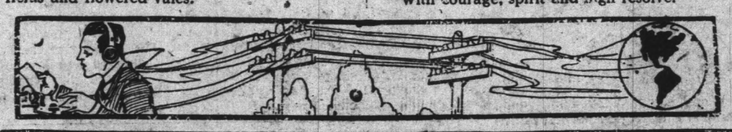
And then there is the trail ahead.
We are not certain of that.
In some ways it will be like that we have come along.
But there will be perhaps differences in the scenery.
The landscape will vary.
Otherwise it would be merely a retracing of the steps we have taken.

* * *

So it is the uncertainty of the trial that lends it its zest.
Just around the corner may be the thing we have sought for a long time.
A little distance into the year and the dream we have had may come true.
Or we may see the face we have longed for.

* * *

It is a romantic prospect, this looking backward and then forward.
For while much has been done, there is much yet to do.
While there have been disappointments, there may be success.
The trail leads—who shall say where?
And we set our feet upon it and go ahead.
With courage, spirit and high resolve.



Songs of the Poets

The Owl—By Alfred Tennyson (1809-1892)

When cats run home and light is come,
And dew is cold upon the ground,
And the far-off stream is dumb
And the whirring sail goes round,
And the whirring sail goes round;
Alone and warming his five wits,
The white owl in the belfry sits.

When merry milkmaids click the latch,
And rarely smell the new-mown hay,
And the cock has sung beneath the thatch
Twice or thrice his roundelay,
Twice or thrice his roundelay;
Alone and warming his five wits,
The white owl in the belfry sits.

WOMEN AND CAREERS

By ESTELLE LAWTON LINDSEY

The world is full of women, but the possibility of careers is limited.

So is the supply of husbands for that matter. The point is that, when all the facts are sifted, it is easier to catch a husband than to make a career. In human evolution snaring came long before building. The human male walks the earth looking in every corner and crevice for a trap disguised as a skirt. When he finds it he walks in and takes possession of trap and trapper.

So much by way of information.

What follows is by way of warning.

Side by side with mass progress walks an increasing number of women capable of doing work of such a nature that its publicity and its rewards combine to induce men to name the combination a "career." I have talked to many of them; but I have yet to find one who did not regard her "career" as a bit of a bauble to be laid on the altar of love and life. In short, a career is nothing unless there is somebody at home to be made happy over it.

A natural corollary of this statement is that, as between home and a career, a wise woman chooses home. In a just system of society a woman should have both; as it is, most women must make a choice, a choice being one of the things that any woman can make. Nor need the choice of love and home make the sacrifice of talents needful. Talents may be used to embellish home and cement between men and women the bonds of affection.

This is mentioned for the cheering of divers unhappy women who are crying in the open and in secret because they are denied a career—or think they are. One of these I met not long ago. She was pretty, young and very unhappy. Her work was a vaudeville stunt to do which she had divorced a good husband.

"I had no reason to divorce him," she said. "But I found that out too late. I am alone and very unhappy."

Perhaps this may console some restless woman who is not alone; but who fancies herself so because she misses the imaginary plaudits of the crowd.

EASTERN POINT OF VIEW

A BOY WHO WILL GET ON

[New York Herald]

A freshman in the University of Michigan has asked permission to drop the required gymnasium training because he works eleven hours every night in a factory to put himself through his college course. He goes to the factory at 5:30 o'clock in the afternoon and quits at 4:30 o'clock in the morning. In the remaining thirteen hours of the day he must find time to sleep, sit through four hours of classroom instruction and prepare himself in his courses.

Compared with this youngster of 18 the average tired business man is a lotus eater. If this boy doesn't crack under the strain he will come out of college with his will steeled to the undertaking of hard jobs. He can never be afraid of work because he will never have to work harder.

Undoubtedly he is trying to do too much. After he has taken the smallest amount of sleep on which he can keep his physical machine running he cannot possibly find time to do his university work as it ought to be done. His case, nevertheless, is worthy of the consideration of young men in college who are afraid that they may do too much. Youth is amazingly recuperative. Medical men in the war were continually being surprised by what the troops could go through and go without and still come back refreshed to go through and go without again.

A boy like this one will get an education whether he goes to college or stays away from college.

[Chicago Journal of Commerce]

In violation of prohibition law the American tendency to regard unpleasant or disliked lawful restrictions on conduct as really intended for "the other fellow" constantly crops out. But that is not the best way to do away with an unpopular law. Its rigid enforcement makes more votes for a change. We have too many laws which are dead letters.

COMMENT ON DAY'S NEWS

By HENRY JAMES

Much in current criminal history serves to recall the Bender family of Kansas. They flourished more years ago than the ordinary citizen cares to confess remembering. So far as recalled, there were father, mother, and Kate, the buxom daughter. Simple farmer folk were the Benders, but they entertained overland travelers at their humble shack. A disturbing rumor was bruited about soon, that when a sojourner paused to accept the Bender hospitality, that was the last seen of him. As the saying is, he vanished as though the earth had swallowed him, and this, with a little aid from the spade of old man Bender, was exactly what the earth had done.

HENRY JAMES

Finally a person of important connections was added to the list of missing and unaccounted for. His relatives insisted upon an investigation, and they dug up a lot of evidence. Some score of bodies came to light. As a rule, death had been caused by a blow on the head with an axe, the old man, or Kate, as happened to be convenient, wielding the weapon.

The Benders were arrested. They would have been tried for murder, but a determined group of men interfered. They took the trio, and started away with them. Not one of the three ever was seen again; never a scrap identified as bone, hide nor hair of any of them. Never a member of the band told of the disposition that had been made of the fiends. But the country knew that dreadful creatures had been killed, and breathed a little easier for the knowledge.

* * *

The woman arrested in Wyoming as Clara Phillips, of course, was somebody else. One reason for this view was that the Wyoming prisoner weighed 155, while only a few days before, Clara had tipped the beam at 122. It is quite possible the Phillips woman has been living well since she abandoned jail fare, but she could not have acquired so much extra poundage.

Moreover, if Clara was helped out by friends, the arrangements for not being caught, doubtless were complete. The possibility that she was taken out for the purpose of being meted the justice that the law withheld, seems to have been overlooked.

A scientific paper has offered $5000 for convincing proof of spiritualistic phenomena. The money is safe. It is made so by professional magicians, who are able to duplicate any manifestation that a medium is capable of producing.

The offer is distressing to Conan Doyle, who believes in ghosts, and is fearful that knavish pretenders will try to summon forth a spurious swarm, to the great scandal of the genuine.

While it is true that nobody has to read sport pages, the average citizen is very likely to do so. He has a boy on the 'varsity eleven, or remembers when he was there himself. He is fond of baseball, and naturally desires to know where his favorite players are to be next season. Possibly he likes golf or tennis, or is a bug on swimming, or track contests. So he looks at the sport pages.

There is one thing that is likely to make him tired, however. This is the everlasting flow of language concerning a fight between Dempsey and Willard.

Members of the I. W. W. are being sent to jail about as fast as they can be caught. This is one of the few organizations membership in which is regarded as prima facie evidence of evil intent.

The men make no objection to going to jail, having, indeed, a plan of filling the place so full that the keepers will be distressed; but the authorities are taking a mean advantage of them and making them work.

So far as ascertained, to work, is to violate the most sacred principle of the order.

* * *

A number of Annapolis cadets have been disciplined for hazing. Some have been dismissed, and others set back a year in their courses. The latter is almost as severe as dismissal. The young student quickly becomes identified with the spirit and activities of the class he enters. To lose a year means the breaking of these ties. It means also that throughout his official career he will trail his old classmates.

There is no cure for hazing. Perhaps boys may be impressed with the belief that the practice must be marked by moderation, but there is no cure.

* * *

Bank robberies are common, but now and then occurs one impelling more than casual interest, such as, for instance, that recently at Piru, a little town on a populous highway.

Here the thieves appeared at 3 o'clock in the afternoon. They treated with the utmost suavity the gentleman they found in charge of the bank. After taking all the cash available, they asked the banker to have a ride with them to the city, and left him there at an address he designated.

One wonders why the banker during this trip did not shout out to some of the numerous persons met. Perhaps he thought that while being treated with such kindness, it would be discourteous for him to make a row.

WATCHING THE PARADE

BY JOHN PILGRIM

If I ever were called upon to make a talk to a girls' school, which I will not be, for various reasons. One of the reasons being that I cannot stand the sight of so much beauty. It destroys me mentally. But if I ever were I would say something like this to the girls:

"You will all get married eventually.

"Because that way is the road to happiness.

"And remember this when you repeat the vows:

"If you want to stay happily married—

"Start to grow."

I can go down a list of my married friends and name the girls who began to vegetate the very day that a bread-winner had been bound to them by the more or less steely hooks of modern matrimony. Some of them devoted themselves to pet dogs, chocolates and matinees. Most of this class added an intelligent interest in dress. Some of them made housework their life work. Others went off at a tangent and became addicted to cocktails, amateur dramatics, and fox trotting. But the ones who stayed happily married—not merely stayed married, as you'll observe—were the ones who began to make their minds work the day they married.

Men have a little bit the best of it in the way of mental training, I'll admit. They mix with other men, who have divers interests. They are compelled to produce at least an appearance of intelligence. Otherwise they become known as dumbbells and are dropped out of golf, poker, and business. But their wives—if the wives wish—can park their minds with their outworn dolls when they marry. They can get along without growing. They cannot do it safely, but they can do it if they will take the chance.

Hence one friend who holds a high position at the bar appears in public with his wife in a sort of apologetic way. The lady is too fat and too silly. Her voice is like the over-tones of a saw filing establishment. And the most important merchant in our town has a wife who seems never to hear of anything. Talk of Cueism, cubism, Fletcherism, or what not, and she'll say:

"What's that? Isn't that queer?"

I could give forty examples. Yet in each of these cases man and wife started on an even footing in the details of education and general intelligence. The one continued to grow and the other relapsed into rust.

The misfit wife of forty is one of the principal causes for divorce.

ROTHERMERE IS NEW MAGNATE OF BRITAIN

LONDON, Dec. 15.—Lord Rothermere, younger brother of Lord Northcliffe, has become the greatest publishing magnate that Britain has ever known. Weekly sales of the newspapers he controls now amount to 30,000,000.

Before his brother's death Lord Rothermere owned the Daily Mirror, a picture newspaper, with a daily circulation of nearly a million and a half; the Sunday Pictorial, which does two millions weekly; the Glasgow Daily Record, most widely circulated newspaper in Scotland; the Leeds Mercury, the second largest seller outside London, and about twenty other country newspapers.

Now he has acquired the Daily Mail, with a daily sale of 1,800,000; the Weekly Dispatch—the Sunday edition of the Mail—which does 800,000; the Weekly Record, which sells half a million, and in all probability he will succeed in acquiring his brother's interest in the London Times.

Apart from these newspaper enterprises, Lord Rothermere holds the majority stock-holding in the Amalgamated Press, which turns out more than a hundred periodicals every week and earned for Northcliffe his fortune of eleven million pounds; he is the chief shareholder in the Anglo-Newfoundland Development Company and the Imperial Paper Mills and thus controls the world's greatest paper-making business.

Rothermere is almost unknown to the British public. He always preferred to remain in the background, while his brother shone in the limelight. But he in the background made the solid fortunes of the family, while Northcliffe exercised his brilliant newspaper flair to the utmost.

In appearance—only—the two brothers were singularly alike. Both were powerfully built, both of the stocky breed, but Rothermere was by far the more powerful physically. And then Northcliffe's face—until just before the end—would wreathe with smiles and gleam with good humor. But his brother, with his bull neck, iron jaw and unsympathetic expression, never relaxes for an instant, except in the very midst of his family. Rothermere has only one test for everything that he puts his hand to—and that is, "Does it pay?" If not, "good-night" to the man in charge!

Not a newspaperman like his brother, yet he plans still further invasions in the newspaper field, because he has strong views and means to have them instilled in the people.

His one great creed in life is peace and national economy. When Britain recently was on the verge of war with Turkey every one of his newspapers came out simultaneously with the same contents bill and the same flaming headline—"Stop this new war!"

Rothermere will never relax his efforts until the British budget is cut down by at least one half.

Swiftness, concentration and ruthlessness are his watchwords. Several years ago the great publishing firm of Hulton planned a Sunday pictorial newspaper. But Rothermere got out his Sunday picture newspaper one week ahead of Hulton's and gained the advantage of all their advertising.

His record in the war was a great one. Appointed head of the Army Clothing Department, he quickly reorganized it from a cumbrous, easy-going institution into one of the most efficient business concerns in Britain. And then he became the first air minister, and in a few months created the great British Air Force.

CALIFORNIA IS HIGH SPOT IN FINANCE

SACRAMENTO, Dec. 15. — California is "the one white spot on the financial map of the world," Edwin M. Daugherty, head of the state corporation department, says in his biennial report, filed today with Gov. William D. Stephens.

This position, says Daugherty, California has maintained through one of the most critical periods in financial history.

The total par value of securities authorized by the department during the period from September 1, 1920 to September 1, 1922 was $1,452,593,830.36, or approximately one billion and a half dollars. This means approximately $750,000,000 per year.

Daugherty's records show that of the billion and a half dollars authorized, $168,353,600 were par value bonds and notes authorized to be sold in the state.

The last biennium shows an aggregate par value of $754,731,321.

It is pointed out in Daugherty's report that the department has been self-supporting and has a $350,000 balance in the state treasury.

PEARLS VALUED AT $150,000

PARIS, Dec. 15.—A string of 209 pearls, totalling 405 carats, sold in a public auction at the Paris Hotel des Ventes for 1,932,875 francs. That is nearly $150,000 at the rate of exchange on the date of sale. This sets a new high record for prices of pearls in France. The string is part of the sequestered German property which the French government is selling and applying to reparations.

It was rather late for Jones to be getting home. Walking up the street from the station, he heard some one following him. He increased his speed and the steps quickened also. Jones felt he must not reveal his terror by looking back. He turned down a side street. The footsteps followed. He dodged into an alley, but was still pursued. In desperation he jumped a wall, ran up a slope and into a churchyard, where he crouched panting in the shadow of a tombstone.

The man behind still followed. Quivering with fear, Jones awaited his pursuer.

"W-what do you want?" he asked.

"I say," exclaimed the stranger mopping his brow, "do you always go home this way? I want to see Mr. Brown, and the man at the station told me to follow you, as you lived next door. Have we much more of this to go through before we get there?"

GEORGIA SENATOR LOSES SHOES BUT RETAINS SOX

ATLANTA, Ga., Dec. 15.—Herman Milner, representative-elect of Dodge county and candidate for Speaker of the State House of Representatives, entered Atlanta in a "soleless" state, and the prospects of facing the wintry winds that swept the streets of the city in sock feet did not strike his sense of humor as perhaps it did the thief who made away with his shoes and those of three other passengers aboard a Pullman car.

"Even at that," he remarked good-naturedly after it was all over and some kind fellow passenger had slipped out and bought shoes for the unfortunates, "we were better off than the preacher — the thief took everything he had except his beeveedees."

NAME WASN'T SAMSON, JUST PLAIN SIMPSON

NEW YORK, Dec. 15. — Sam Simpson worked hard. All day long he carried heavy iron baulks and girders to and fro. Towards morning he said to the foreman, who was a notorious slave driver: "Boss, you am suah got me down on dat pay-roll, yeh?"

The foreman glanced at the list. "Yes," he said sternly, "here you are—Sam Simpson. That's right, isn't it?"

"Yaas, boss, but Ah thought mebbe yuh done gone got me down dah as Samson."

Only an accomplished peacemaker can patch up a quarrel so that the patches won't show.

STOP RHEUMATISM WITH RED PEPPER

When you are suffering with rheumatism so you can hardly get around just try Red Pepper Rub and you will have the quickest relief known.

Nothing has such concentrated, penetrating heat as red peppers. Instant relief. Just as soon as you apply Red Pepper Rub you feel the tingling heat. In three minutes it warms the sore spot through and through. Frees the blood circulation, breaks up the congestion—and the old rheumatism torture is gone.

Rowles Red Pepper Rub, made from red peppers, costs little at any drug store. Get a jar at once. Use it for lumbago, neuritis, backache, stiff neck, sore muscles, colds in chest. Almost instant relief awaits you. Be sure to get the genuine, with the name Rowles on each package.—Adv.

DRINK WATER IF KIDNEYS HURT

Take a tablespoonful of Salts if Back pains or Bladder bothers.

Too much meat may produce uric acid, says a well-known authority, who warns us to be constantly on guard against kidney trouble.

The kidneys do their utmost to free the blood of this irritating acid, but become weak from the overwork; they get sluggish; the eliminative tissues clog and thus the waste is retained in the blood to poison the entire system.

When your kidneys ache and feel like lumps of lead, and you have stinging pains in the back, or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment, or the bladder is irritable, obliging you to seek relief during the night, when you have severe headaches, nervous and dizzy spells, acid stomach or rheumatism in bad weather, get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning, and in a few days your kidneys may act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys, to help neutralize the acids in urine so it is no longer a source of irritation, thus often ending urinary and bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia water drink, and nobody can make a mistake by taking a little occasionally to help to keep the kidneys clean and active. Drink plenty of water at all times. —Adv.

Stern was the glance which the coroner cast at the young doctor who had just appeared in the witness box.

"And when you were called in," he asked, "what did you give the deceased?"

"Give him? Well, I gave him ipecacuanha."

"Indeed!" sneered the coroner. "And I suppose you know, sir, that in the man's condition you might just as well have given him the aurora borealis?"

"Quite so, sir," said the witness, blandly. "It is a pleasure to meet a man of medical education. That is exactly what I should have given him if he had not died!"

GRAY WOLF OF THE WESTERN SLOPE IS KILLED

Weighed 150 Pounds and Measured Seven and a Half Feet

GRAND JUNCTION, Colo., Dec. 15.—The giant gray wolf that for years roamed Mesa county and caused hundreds of dollars in losses to stockmen, has made its last kill.

Luke Hummel of the Dolores section is financially much beteter off as the slayer of the great wolf for he collected a score of rewards.

The wolf leader of a bold pack measured seven and one-half feet from tip to tip and weighed 150 pounds. Veteran trappers and hunters say it is one of the largest ever killed on the western slope of Colorado. Scores of hunters have tried vainly for years to run down the giant lobo, but he always avoided their baited traps and kept out of range of their rifles.

Hummel set a large trap and attached a heavy log to it. The next morning the trap and log were gone and a trail led through the forest. Hummel started in pursuit.

For three days he followed the windings of the furrowed path left by the log as the wolf sought to escape. At the end of the third day, fifty miles from the place where he set the trap, Hummel came upon the animal, exhausted but showing fight. A shot from his 30-30 ended the wolf's long career.

DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE FILES ARE MISSING

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—Secret files wanted by the prosecution in the Daugherty impeachment proceedings have mysteriously disappeared from the department of justice, it developed today in the hearings before the house judiciary committee.

The missing papers contained charges made by A. P. MacAuley of New York and Toronto, against William J. Burns, chief of the secret service. They were sent to Daugherty in 1921 in an attempt to keep him from appointing Burns.

When demand for the files was renewed today by counsel for Representative Keller, author of the impeachment resolution, Attorney Howland, representing Daugherty, stated the documents had disappeared. He had previously admitted the existence of the MacAuley papers and had said he would produce them.

"A thorough search was made for the papers," Howland said, "but we were unable to find them."

"Well, there were such files," declared Jackson Ralston, attorney for Keller, "and we will insist that they be brought in."

A sweep and a baker in a small country town had quarrelled. Strangely enough, they had exactly the same names. One morning the local paper contained the following announcement:

"In consequence of frequent and irritating mistakes, John Jones, the baker, begs to announce that he is not the same person as John Jones, the sweep, and that he has no connection with the latter."

But he was more irritated than ever when he read the sweep's reply which appeared n the next copy of the paper:

"John Jones, the sweep, who was declared yesterday to be a different person from and to be in no way connected with John Jones, the baker, wishes to be known in future as 'Lucky John Jones.'"

JAMES W. FOLEY

THE BITTERNESS OF POVERTY

Oh, when you pass the candy store and she Looks in the window there where she can see
Great piles of stuff such as she likes to eat,
And looks at you so sorrowful and sweet,
But you are broke and have to hurry by,
You're apt to heave a terrible secret sigh
Because you're poor, and you can plainly see
How crime is often made from poverty,
As when you steal a loaf of bread and go
To jail so your dear ones don't starve, you know.

Nobody knows the terrible misery
You're in to know that she can look and see
Such lovely things and want them awful bad,
When you've spent all the money that you had.
She does not weep or wring her hands or sigh
But Oh, you know she'd like to go and buy
Some peanut bars but it is all in vain,
And you're too proud or else dare not explain,
The reason why you have to hurry on
Is just because your money is all gone.

And then you feel to see if there is not
A nickel in your pocket you forgot,
Or did not know you had but all in vain,
For there is none. And with a sigh of pain
You try to talk of something else as though
You did not notice how she's yearning so
For peanut bars, but you would almost trade
Your strong right arm if you could just have laid
A nickel in her hand and let her go
Inside and spend it like a queen you know.

OBSERVATIONS

BY A GLENDALE OLD TIMER

For many years past newspaper paragrapners have commented, ofttimes, satirically, on the increasing number of women's clubs and offered sage advice to the members to "stay at home and mind the children," to "keep things bright and pleasant for the husband," and to not "meddle with matters outside the home." But the ladies seem to have gotten along fairly well in the dual role of home-makers and club members, despite the frowns of the lordly sex. In the formation and carrying on the work of the greatest club ever organized, the W. C. T. U., the women have been the mightiest factor in dooming to everlasting oblivion that curse of America, the saloon. The most of the women's clubs have been organized for the purpose of study, recreation and fellowship, and probably the peer of all these is the Ebell. But now we have in Glendale the Tuesday Afternoon, the old organized Woman's club, the Wednesday and Thursday Morning clubs, the Music club and several card clubs, in addition to the many Parent-Teacher associations, which are clubs in a sense. It would seem that the ladies have their time pretty well occupied with all these, and their auxiliaries to the G. A. R., Knights of Pythias, Masons, Odd Fellows and so on. But how about the busy men, who "slave all day long to make a living for these 'clubbed-to-death' women?" Of course they haven't any time for clubs, with their dozen or more lodges which they "just must attend." But how about the Kiwanis club, Rotarians, Owls, and what not? Seems like it is a mad race between the sexes to see which can organize the most lodges and clubs in the shortest time.

Some curiosities of this English language of ours have been noted in previous "Observations" but "there are others." Do you know that the word "that" can be used six times consecutively in one sentence without violating any rule of grammar and the sentence be an unequivocal expression? Now note this: "He said that, that that that, that that man used, was the proper word in that connection;" or, in lengthening form, "He said that very thing, that that word 'that,' which that man used, was the proper word, etc." Of course such a sentence need never be used, but it admirably shows the twists and turns of our erratic language.

Do you know what a palindrome is, and would you know one if you met it on the street? For fear you don't and you wouldn't, I'll tell you. A palindrome is a word or a sentence the letters of which read the same backward as forward. Some word palindromes are did, Hannah, madam. It is said that when the first man sought to impress his atuhority on Eve he said, in palindrome, "Madam I'm Adam." A sign that had the same characteristics is one that once hung over a western bakeshop, "Yreka bakery." The longest known palindrome is the English translation of one of Napoleon's famous sayings, "Able was I ere I saw Elba."

Nowadays the shoemaker never makes a shoe and the watchmaker couldn't make a watch, for he hasn't the tools. Then why the names? The word "matinee" is French and is derived from the word "matin," which means "morning." So a matinee is a morning performance, yet the word is used in this country to designate an afternoon performance, only. Wonder why?

While the American has the reputation across the waters as being always in a rush, nervous, restless, bent on getting to the goal in the shortest possible time, yet, paradoxically, we are the slowest people on earth in dealing out justice. Murder trials drag for weeks and months, while lawyers scheme to suppress incriminating evidence, and when a verdict is finally secured, new trials, appeals and such precedures may delay justice for years, if the guilty party has plenty of money with which to bribe unscrupulous lawyers, who are abetted by judges who lend a ready ear to the flimsiest arguments and most absurd technicalities. The slow-going Englishman, however, rushes trials to early completion and justice is meted out impartially regardless of the wealth and standing of the criminal. And, most singularly, while we abuse the jurors who bring in a verdict contrary to the evidence presented, we praise the conscienceless lawyer whose attempts to suppress vital evidence are successful and whose often lying appeals to the jurors influence them to disregard their oaths to render a verdict according to the law and the evidence. We have a lot to learn from England in this line, but we are very, very slow to do so. And our national legislators seem just as slow to adopt measures that other nations have tried out with great success for many years, to our own country's undoing. England takes from us, by her ship subsidy law, nearly all our ocean carrying trade, yet our wise (?) legislators wrangle for months over a similar measure to aid our own shipping and keep our flag from being banished from the seas.

You oldtimers, do you remember your boyhood thrill over the sight of a big engine careering through space and hauling a string of cars after it? In your eyes and mine it was a model of all that was grand and powerful. Why, I knew the whistle of every engine on the old Illinois Central and could give the number of the engine so signaling. I would talk learnedly, and so would you, about how the passenger trains tore along at a mile a minute, when 40 miles an hour was seldom attained in those leisurely days. The electric cars and motors may be more practical and useful but they never give the thrill that comes over me even to this day when I see the huge locomotive, like a thing of life, move off with its long train of cars. There is another thing we note now that was unknown then, and that is the standardization of color for passenger cars. Now, on all roads with possibly one or two exceptions, the cars are painted an olive green color. Then some were yellow, some orange, some blue, and others a deep red. And the Illinois Central passenger cars of those days had roofs of several different shapes instead of all being of one type, as now. But perhaps some of you old timers lived near the lakes, gulf or ocean. If you did, ships were doubtless fully as important, if not more so, in your eyes. And I am sure that to your vision the ship under full sail, with its cloud of canvas towering upward a hundred feet or more, is a far more beautiful sight than the finest steamship. There would not be half the romance to sea stories if steamships instead of sailing vessels were involved.

I wonder how many of those who have seen the play, "Merchant of Venice," know who is meant in Shylock's exclamation in praise of Portia, which is afterward ironically repeated by Bassanio's friends: "A Daniel come to judgment. Yea, a Daniel!" Most people who read the bible as well as they do Shakespeare and some who do much better, have an idea if they ever gave the matter a thought, that the prophet Daniel, of the Old Testament, is alluded to. Not so. The story of the young Daniel who gave judgment that defeated an infamous attempt to bring about the death of a lovely and virtuous woman, is found in the Apocrypha, a cluster of short books found with the biblical manuscripts but decided by the savants who compiled the King James and later versions of the bible as not having been inspired; hence they were barred from a place with the 66 inspired books. One of these short stories, which are found in many large family bibles of years ago, following the Old Testament, concerns Susanna, beautiful and chaste wife of a prominent Jew. Two elders, inflamed with her charms and indignantly repulsed by her when they threatened exposure if she did not yield to their base proposals, brought a false accusation against her and she was condemned to be stoned to death, on their perjured testimony. Young Daniel succeeded in arresting the proceedings just in time to save Susanna's life and by questioning the two elders separately, showed, by their contradictions, the falsity of the evidence previously given. Susanna was released and commended for her virtuous conduct, and the wicked elders stoned to death, while the young Daniel was acclaimed by the populace for his shrewdness. Hence, "A Daniel come to judgment."

Some of the sweetest poems in the English language, verses breathing tender sorrow and sublime faith, are little known, since the authors are not recognized as poets by the literary world. But to my mind the only poem ever written by Elizabeth Akers Allen, "Backwood, Turn Backwood, O Time In Your Flight," is sweeter and sadder in sentiment than most compositions of famous writers. Elsie Leigh Whittlesey, writer of many rather mawkish love stories, in her one attempt at verse produced the classic, "Curfew Must Not Ring Tonight." Louisa M. Alcott, who wrote some of the sweetest and most wholesome books for girls and boys, the "Little Women Series," and others, has, in the book that gave the title to the series, a poem, "In the Garret," which for pathos and pure sentiment, has seldom been equalled. If you do not think so, get out your "Little Women" or borrow a copy and read this beautiful poem. It is near the close of the book.
